46 LOST AS SUB SINKS TANKER

BULLETIN

LONDON, Jan. 19 (INS)—Families and next of kin of 46 crew members of the 10,000-ton British Tanker Inverdargle were informed today that the men were missing and were believed to have been lost as a result of enemy submarine action off the southwest coast of England.

LONDON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Advices to the effect that the Royal Air Force had struck again at German North Sea bases reached London today—25 years to the day since the first German Zeppelins droned in from the North Sea to bomb England in the World War.

TAISTO MAKI

Athlete Is War Victim

Shell Wounds Taisto Maki, Finn Runner

LONDON, Jan. 20 (AP)—Reuter's (British news agency) said in a Helsinki dispatch today that Taisto Maki, holder of five world running records, had been slightly wounded by a shell splinter at the front. He was expected to recover quickly, Reuter's said.

Maki, accompanied by Paavo Nurmi, whom he succeeded as the world's leading distance runner, was scheduled within a few days to leave Finland for a tour of the United States in interest of the Finnish relief fund.

Plans called for Maki to work out for several weeks on the West Coast and then meet America's leading distance performers in a series of track meets. The slim Finnish runner holds world records from 3000 to 10,000 meters, the majority of them set within the last year.

The Finnish consulate in New York and Dan Ferris, secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union, said they had no information of any change in Maki's plans. Ferris said the consulate had informed him today Maki and Nurmi would leave Helsinki Jan. 23 and, by Clipper from Lisbon on Jan. 27, arrive in New York Jan. 29.

MOVE NAZI TROOPS IN POLAND

LONDON, Jan. 19 (INS)—Large bodies of German troops reportedly have crossed the Russo-German demarcation line in former Poland, the London Daily Express said today in a dispatch from Budapest.

The newspaper said troop trains and army trucks have been seen moving to the east and southeast through Lvov, Drohobycz and Stanislavov.

Several theories have been advanced in Budapest to account for the German troop movements, according to the report.

One theory is that German forces are being concentrated in Black Sea regions to reinforce the Russian troops there. The message said German sources have warned that an Anglo-French-Turkish army is being organized in Turkey, threatening an offensive against Russia's rich Baku oil fields.

The dispatch also said that concentrating his forces, Chancellor Hitler might urge Dictator Josef Stalin to create "incidents" which would serve as an excuse for extending the war to the Near East and attacking the British oil fields in Iraq.

However, the air ministry said it had no information to confirm dispatches from Tonder, Denmark, indicating that raids were carried out last night against the German seaplane base, the island of Sylt, and possibly the naval base of Helgoland, another North sea island.

Unofficial but authoritative sources insisted that no Royal Air Force planes were over Sylt yesterday.

The cargo of an Italian steamer, the 427-ton Fremuda, was saved today when the vessel was refloated from Goodwin Sands and safely beached. She had run aground after colliding with a lighthouse Tuesday night.

(At least 2773 lives and 318 ships of an aggregate tonnage of 1,127,355 are known to have been lost by belligerents and neutrals in the war at sea.)

Apparently linked with Britain's economic war effort was a decision announced last night to suspend for three months import of American surplus cotton under a cotton-rubber barter deal.

According to the Tonder dispatches, the first attack on German sea bases was believed to have come about 8 p. m. (noon Thursday E.S.T.) when a half-hour of anti-aircraft fire was heard on the Danish coast, near Sylt and only 65 miles from Germany's North Sea "Gibraltar" on Helgoland.

Three hours later Danish observers saw five bombers which they believed to be British fly over Sylt to the accompaniment of gunfire and five explosions which sounded like bombs.

AIR PUMP FAILS, DIVER NEAR DEATH

Diver George Whiting had a narrow escape from death today when his air-pump failed as he was searching the channel off Dorchester bay for the bodies of three boys drowned there early this week.

At the time the pump broke, Whiting was 105 feet from the police boat Pierce which was acting as his tender.

His brother, Lorne Whiting, Police Officer Fred Robbins and Police Sergeant Thomas Currihan pulled Whiting to the boat out of water in one minute and 56 seconds.

DIVER UNCONSCIOUS

Whiting was unconscious, when his helmet was finally uncrewed. His brother and Sgt. Currihan applied first aid measures and revived him.

Urged by police to go to a hospital, Whiting refused and insisted in returning to work, after his pump had been repaired.

"That's the sort of chance you take in this business," he said. "But today's was the closest call to date."

Whiting's accident today was the second in 24 hours on the Dorchester Bay.

Diver Victor Estell had a close call yesterday when he punctured his suit on a sharp piece of metal, and was hauled to the surface in the nick of time, with water in his rig almost up to his neck.

Today's diving operations were carried on under unusually perilous conditions, due to floating ice and frost that formed in air hoses and pumps.

The boys whose bodies are being sought lost their lives when ice cakes on which they were playing carried them off shore and broke up under their weight.

Jay Cooke to Seek Guffey's Senate Seat

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19 (AP)—Jay Cooke, Philadelphia Republican city committee chairman, announced his candidacy today for Republican nomination for the U. S. Senate seat now held by Joseph F. Guffey, Democrat.

Cooke was promised support of Republican state organization leaders and of 41 county chairmen.

SENATOR WILLIAM E. BORAH OF IDAHO
Physicians Report 'No Change' Since Yesterday

BORAH REPORTED GROWING WEAKER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—William Edgar Borah, the veteran Senator from Idaho, was reported "growing weaker" today.

The word came from his secretary, Miss Cora Rubin, one of the small band of growing friends waiting in his apartment across town from the Senate chamber, where the Republican leader made his historic stand against American entry into the League of Nations.

Mrs. Borah clung to the hope that some miracle would save her 74-year-old husband, who was stricken by a cerebral hemorrhage Tuesday morning. She remembered that her own life was saved in 1932, when she was gravely ill of parrot fever, by a newly-developed serum which was flown to Idaho.

But the Senator's physician, Dr. Worth Daniels, son of the ambassador to Mexico, gave her little encouragement. The "Lion of Idaho" lay in a deep coma, his head hot with fever. Two special nurses were on duty, day and night, and Dr. Daniels called every few hours.

PHONE CALLS FROM HOME

Old friends were let quietly into the apartment, past the Chinese check in the hall where Mrs. Borah keeps her famous collection of stone and metal elephants, to tell her of their sympathy and of their hope that the Senate dean would recover.

Every few minutes the muffled telephone rang. Once, yesterday, it was President Roosevelt calling to voice his anxiety at the veteran Republican's illness.

Again it was Sen. Glass of Virginia, who opposed Borah as vigorously in the League of Nations fight, as the President did in recent years on the court re-organization and arms embargo repeal issues.

Many telephone calls were received also from old friends in Idaho and other parts of the West. Among the colleagues who called personally were Sens. Vandenberg (R.) of Michigan and Clark (D.) of Idaho.

War Diary

139th Day

By the Associated Press
Soviet Russia backtracked today on two fronts, the military and diplomatic, in her winter-balked invasion of Finland.

On the military front 40,000 Russians were in retreat just above the Arctic Circle, the Finns reported, after driving nearly half-way across Finland toward a strategic railroad, Kemijarvi. The invaders turned back suddenly after effecting the deepest penetration of Finland by any Russian force in the campaign.

A Finnish communique said the Finns had advanced about 25 miles in the last few days and fighting was taking place for Markajarvi between pursuing Finns and Russians protecting the withdrawing troops who still were 50 miles from their own soil.

The Finnish high command also announced that "several strong enemy patrols" were wiped out in two sectors of the southern end of the eastern front.

On the diplomatic front Russia apologized both to Sweden and Norway for violations of their territory by Russian fliers.

Sweden had protested against the alleged bombing last Sunday of Kallaks Island. Russia's reply failed to mention any bombing, but acknowledged that Russian aircraft had flown over the island when lost in a snowstorm. "Regret at these happenings" also was tendered Norway in reply to her protest that Russian planes had flown over Norwegian territory between Jan. 12 and 14 and one had landed because of unfavorable weather.

In the German-British-French war, Danish dispatches indicated that British fliers last night raided the Island of Sylt, German seaplane base, and possibly the North Sea naval base of Helgoland.

At home, Scotland Yard experts were investigating the possibility of sabotage in yesterday's explosions in the royal gunpowder factory at Waltham Abbey, where five persons died.

Sullivan Ousts Two High Jail Officials

Co-incident with the revelation that Edmund L. Dolan, former city treasurer, now serving a sentence at Charles st. jail, held the important key to hospital quarters there, Sheriff Frederick R. Sullivan today discharged two attaches, blamed in the report of Commissioner Arthur T. Lyman for "shocking conditions" at the institution.

JURIST AIDS—When Paullette Goddard, actress, failed to appear in New York court to face libel action brought by Joseph Levy, who says he's her father, Justice Charles McLaughlin denied a motion to hold her in contempt.

Loyal Suitor Weds Legless Beauty Tonight

HACKENSACK, N. J., Jan. 19 (AP)—Jessie Simpson, 21-year-old beauty whose courage and smile could not be dimmed by the loss of her legs in a railroad accident, will be married tonight to the sweetheart who was constantly at her side during the long, trying months of hospitalization and adjustment.

The former photographers' model fell under the wheels of a commuters' train in April, 1937, and one leg had to be amputated above the knee and the other at the ankle, but she stood supple and straight last night in her Teaneck home as she spoke of her impending marriage to James Steward, young advertising executive.

Her pretty dark eyes sparkled and her cheeks were aglow with the excitement of a day of shopping, trying on dresses, receiving presents and, incidentally, taking care of her beauty shop.

Miss Simpson plays golf, dances and drives her car and—she smiles—intends to keep house and cook after Mr. and Mrs. James Steward return from a Southern honeymoon.

"I may continue with the beauty shop," she said, "and then I may not. If I find a wife has her hands too full sewing, cleaning and keeping house, I'll give up the shop."

She wears artificial legs.

$5000 QUINCY FIRE

Five thousand dollars was the amount of damage placed on a fire at 76 California ave., Quincy, in which that city's new $29,000 aerial ladder was used for the first time.

The men dismissed are James G. Morris, deputy in charge of the jail, and Deputy Frank Metz, his assistant.

Sullivan immediately took charge of the jail himself.

That the supervisor of the jail hospital had to go to Dolan to get the key, when investigators were searching the hospital was revealed by Lyman today in a report which recommended the discharge of 40 jail attaches.

Although the law requires that the hospital supervisor be a registered nurse, Lyman said, James J. McDonnell, the present incumbent, is not one.

"Only after the investigators insisted could they get several closed doors in the hospital opened for them," Lyman's report charges, "and when they wanted a locked desk opened he had to go to an inmate (Dolan) to get the key."

"In the desk were found many private papers belonging to the inmate."

HITS FOOD SYSTEM

Attacking the system of food purchases at the jail as directly in violation of a ruling set down by the Boston Finance Commission, the report says the purchases under a non-competitive system were made with the stamped approval of Mayor Tobin.

Under the law, the report says, the purchases made under Dowd's system by Deputy Jailer James G. Morris had to have the mayor's approval. All city departments are supposed to make purchases through the city purchasing agent.

"Under the date of July 17, 1939, a letter showing the stamped approval of the mayor gave authority to Morris to continue his system of telephoning orders for food without going through the

G-MEN GUARD GIRL

MARBLEHEAD, Jan. 19—Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and police here are investigating a letter that threatened the life of 16-year-old Estelle Parsons, daughter of the town's chairman of the board of selectmen and prominent Lynn attorney, it was revealed today.

A guard of police has been thrown about the Parsons home since last Monday, when the secret investigation was begun, Chief of Police Irving Chapman admitted.

Parsons, who is ill at home, received the communication last Monday and immediately called police. "If you don't leave $500 under the tree in Porter sq., you'll never see your daughter again," the letter said, police revealed.

Estelle, a pretty, brown-eyed girl, attends Marblehead high school. She has an older sister, Elaine, who goes to an exclusive girls' school in New Hampshire.

Chief Chapman said that when he was called in he remembered the time several years ago when Rep. Malcolm Bell of Marblehead was sent several threatening letters that were traced to a madman.

"Patrolmen Russell Graves and Chennons Rogers were assigned to guard the Parsons house," he said, "and then we called the G-men in Boston."

Federal Agent Thomas Rice was assigned to the case.

Parsons is a well known political and social figure along the North Shore.

U. S. May Ban Plane Stops at Bermuda

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (INS)—Possibility that the U. S. government may eliminate Bermuda as a stop in the Pan-American Airways transatlantic air service as a reprisal against Great Britain was advanced today by Secretary of State Hull. He said he was speculating on possible measures that may be taken in retaliation against Britain's seizure and a censorship of American mails.

Debs Rally as War With Models Opens

To the men of Boston and vicinity:

Fellows, we'd better get up to the Common and build ourselves a few of those bomb-proof shelters and get down in them and pull the holes in after us, because this city is no place for us.

The girls are at it.

Scores of Boston's pretty models, you know, banded together to ask Governor Saltonstall to legislate against debutantes who model for charity.

GIRLS ARE AT IT?

"We can't afford to lose our jobs just because some deb can't stay home afternoons," said cute little Ruth Allen of Revere. "We challenge them to prove themselves models."

"We'll fight them in evening gowns, or bathing suits—or saronges."

The debutantes answered today, in the person of Mrs. Mildred L. Alberts, who has long been connected with Boston society fashion shows and instructor of society models.

"Look at the pictures of those girls in the papers today! No wonder they want the Governor to save their jobs. Who in his right mind would hire them as models anyway?" she said.

Mrs. Alberts continued:

THEY MUST BE GOOD

"This is the old cry of people who just aren't good enough. Business is business today, and no company that ever called me up to get models ever asked whether the girls were social or not."

"They just want good models. If the girls are good, they make the grade; and if they're not—they call the Governor."

"These models are ridiculous. Society girls are just as well equipped for modeling as these girls. Society girls have got everything, too."

Well, all right.

"Nancy Bertelson and June Hawbridge made the grade as models because they were good. If you've got the stuff—that's what counts," Mrs. Alberts finished in a fine burst of frenzy.

Betsy Taylor of Cambridge, another of the models, explained that a mass meeting of 200 of the professional girls will be held next Thursday in Brookline.

"Then, when Governor Saltonstall comes back from Florida, we're going to petition him to enact a bill that would make models a professional group licensed and controlled by the State," she said, smiling daintily.

BARE BIG DOG TAX EVASION

Evidence indicating income tax evasions on at least $250,000 of Wonderland dog track profits will be presented to the federal grand jury Monday, Asst. U. S. Atty. Henry M. Leen, announced today.

He said indictments would be sought against five stockholders in the Revere track, reputedly the most successful in the United States.

Leen listed 35 witnesses who were to be served with summonses. Nearly half of these are women, some of them employed at the dog track; others relatives of employees or stockholders.

Leen conferred with George Leamy, special investigator for the U. S. Treasury Department, and with Federal Agent Leo P. Looney. The assistant U. S. attorney said he believed the Wonderland inquiry would be completed in two or three days, requiring substantially less time than the recent Dighton dog track investigation.

This took two and a half weeks and resulted in indictment of James J. Egan, general manager of the track.

Courts Weigh Kin Bridals

A Lynn mother of five children today asked in Salem Probate Court that her marriage be annulled, on the grounds that the man she married in 1924 is her own uncle.

Mrs. Carmella Reitano says that Giocchino Reitano, her father's brother, obtained a marriage license by fraud and married her despite their close relationship.

Another petition for annulment was filed by Bonner Owen of Haverhill, asking that his marriage to Yvonne Pelletier, also of Haverhill, whom he said told him she married for spite, be dissolved. He said she married him to spite another man and that she has never been his wife in deed.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 19 (AP)—Thirteen days of married life were at an end today for a young man, 20, and a girl, 18, because inquiry indicated they were brother and sister.

Juvenile Judge Wilfred Bradshaw annulled the marriage.

Evidence showed the girl was placed with foster parents while a baby and the boy in an orphan's home. The girl's mother had the same last name as that of the boy. The couple met last year and were married Jan. 5. They said they were convinced they were not related, but the judge entered an annulment and continued the investigation. He withheld their names.

New Plan Drafted For Loan to Finns

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Senator Brown (Dem.) Michigan, said today that a modified plan for a loan to Finland was being worked out by experts of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Although Brown declined to disclose details, he reported after a conference with Jesse J. Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, that the draft of a new bill would be completed by Monday.

"I think we will work out something that will be satisfactory," Brown said.

The Michigan senator, author of a measure to grant a $60,000,000 unrestricted loan to Finland, was understood to have discussed the situation further today with President Roosevelt.

He and Senator Wagner (D.) of New York, called on the President about the matter yesterday.

Indications were that the modified bill largely would follow the course outlined by the President in letters to Vice-President Garner and Speaker Bankhead last week, when he suggested that Congress increase the capitalization of the export-import bank so that funds to purchase non-military supplies could be advanced to the Finns.

Some senators predicted that a loan of not more than $30,000,000 would be requested in the new legislation.

White Collar Jobs Sought

At a conference with department heads today Mayor Tobin asked them to relieve the situation for many WPA white-collar workers by suggesting new projects in order to give them employment.

Since last spring, he pointed out, the 4200 such employees have win-dled to 2900, and those now working are on projects which will end within the next four months.

The mayor also instructed department heads to bear down on economy measures for the coming years, as he looked for higher prices for food and fuel.

ADDS 100 TO PAYROLL

FALL RIVER, Jan. 19—The Firestone Rubber and Latex Co. has announced that an additional 100 employees would be hired within a month due to acquisition of a new process for manufacture of battery separators. The company now employs 800.

Anne Morgan Visitor in Hub

Miss Anne Morgan, sister of J. P.
Morgan and president of the Comite American de Secours Civil, a group organized for relief of distress among French civilians, was a Boston visitor today.

She inspected the work of this city's branch of the American Friends of France, Inc., spending more than an hour at the A. F. F.
headquarters and sewing-room at 421 and 419 Boylston st.

Mrs. James B. Campbell of Boston who was in charge of the headquarters office, received Miss Morgan and acted as her guide. Volunteer sewing for distressed French civilians is now in progress at the workroom from one to five p. m.,
Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Reporter Says Japs Tried to Kidnap Him

SHANGHAI, Jan. 19 (AP)—C. D.
Alcott of Chamberlains, S. D., a newspaper reporter and radio commentator here told police today a group of unidentified men who he said were Japanese had tried to kidnap him.

Alcott said the men attempted to seize him while he was riding in a jinrikisha last night in the American defense zone of the International Settlement. Police gave Alcott a bodyguard.

TOBIN ACTS ON GAETA WITNESS

The amazing case of the "forgotten prisoner" was headed for a showdown today as Mayor Tobin acted to free him from a jail he doesn't want to leave after banking $1319 of taxpayers' money.

Principal in the unusual case is Charles Calidra, 50, witness in the Louis Gaeta gangland murder case, who 23 months ago asked and was granted a cozy berth in Plymouth County jail, because he feared reprisals for his testimony.

Declaring the situation "is an injustice on taxpayers of Boston," Mayor Tobin today prepared to confer with Clerk William M. Preamble of the Suffolk Criminal Court in efforts to have Calidra "freed and permitted to board himself."

Indicating a possible clash between state and city officials, the attorney general's office declared Calidra can remain in jail as long as he chooses.

Calidra, who has been receiving free room and board, plus $3 a day in witness fees for the last 23 months, indicated an unwillingness to leave. Officers said he has banked $1319 since he was jailed.

Calidra's case first attracted attention when Sheriff Charles H. Robbins of Plymouth County sent a bill for $100 representing Calidra's board, to Boston City Council for payment.

City Auditor Charles J. Fox has refused to approve the bill unless endorsed by Judge Frederick W. Fosdick or Atty.-Gen. Dever.

Gunmen Get $22 in Roxbury

Within five minutes after she opened her variety store in Warren st., Roxbury, today, Miss Anna Miller, 49, was held up and robbed of $22.

She told police two men entered the store. One asked for a package of cigarettes. She turned her back to the men and one of them pushed a gun into her side.

The other scooped the money from the till and then both fled.

Former So. African Leader Urges Peace

CAPETOWN, Union of South Africa, Jan. 19 (AP)—Gen. J. E. M. Masing, whose opposition to South Africa's declaration of war against Germany led to his resignation as prime minister Sept. 6, continued his fight against the war today as Parliament opened a new session.

He gave notice he would offer a motion in the House of Assembly Tuesday urging that the war be ended.

Uncle Sam Color Blind?

DENVER, Jan. 19 (AP)—D. W. Strickland, a Williams College man, figures the postoffice department must be color blind in putting a purple 3-cent stamp to honor the late Charles W. Eliot, Harvard president, and a red 2-cent stamp to honor the late Mark Hopkins, Williams president.

Harvard's color is crimson; Williams' is royal purple.

MORE COLD TO FOLLOW SNOW

While a steady fall of snow continued to blanket Boston and New England, the weatherman predicted today that temperatures would begin dropping again tonight to continue the cold spell.

More than three inches of snow are expected to fall on this section today, then temperatures will drop to near-zero for the week-end. Warmer weather is not in sight until the beginning of next week. Snow flurries are predicted for northern New England tonight and tomorrow.

Subzero temperatures were reported today in many sections of Maine, New Hampshire and the Berkshires.

At Greenville, Me., it was 15 below zero. Rumford, Me., registered 17 below.

Atop Mt. Washington, the official temperature was 24 below, with a howling blizzard making travel and observation impossible.

Cold weather was general through the central and eastern United States. Georgia shivered with the mercury at 10 above. Washington, D. C., reported the same temperature, with a drop to zero forecast for tonight.

Truckers Near Final Agreement

Final settlement of disputed issues between 16 Boston trucking firms and 5500 union drivers seemed near today as representatives of both groups were called to a conference before the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration.

Negotiations between truck owners and drivers began three weeks ago when a contract governing working conditions in 1939 expired. Threat of a strike that might tie up Boston transportation and face the city with a food and fuel shortage caused state officials and labor heads anxiety and led to intensive efforts toward a peaceful compromise.

F. D. Hints He May Pick His Successor

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (INS)—President Roosevelt tossed out a sly inference to his press conference today that should he not be a third term candidate he might want to pick his successor.

The subject arose when Earl Godwin, president of the White House Correspondents Ass'n., presented Kenneth Crawford, newly-elected president of the American Newspaper Guild.

Godwin said Crawford's election was perhaps prophetic in that he had a terrific majority, carrying even Maine and Vermont. This run-away race developed after Mrs. Roosevelt, a member of the guild, had declined nomination for the presidency.

"Crawford is of the opinion that when a Roosevelt leaves the field the remaining candidate has clear sailing," Godwin said.

"Did my wife pick him?" asked the President with a chuckle.

Girl Saves 2 In Auto Plunge

SALMON, Idaho, Jan. 19 (AP)—Fifteen-year-old Bernice Powers of Shoup saved two companions from drowning today after a skidding car plunged them into the icy Salmon river.

Bernice and a schoolmate, Mary Jane Twining, were driving to school in zero weather with Charles McArthur, 22. The car tumbled down a 30-foot embankment.

Stunned, Bernice recovered to find her companions were badly hurt. She managed to pull both out of the water to the top of the car and then, with the Twining girl, swam to shore.

McArthur, who could not swim, clung to the top of the car as it drifted downstream. Meantime Bernice ran a mile to a ranch house for aid. The injured were then taken to Salmon Hospital.

U. S. Still Holds Back On Envoy to Berlin

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The appointment of a new ambassador to Germany is a matter still indefinitely in the future, President Roosevelt indicated at a press conference today. Asked whether he was planning to name soon a successor to Hugh Wilson, Mr. Roosevelt said not that he knew of.

Wilson was brought back to this country for consultation months ago and subsequently resigned and took up special duties here in the State Department.

Identifies Browder As 'George Morris'

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—A former vice-president of the International Workers' Order, a Communist organization, testified today at the passport fraud trial of Earl Browder that after witnessing a passport application for one George Morris he later "realized" that Morris actually was Browder.

The witness was George E. Powers, whose name appears on Morris' 1927 passport application as the man who identified Morris. The last witness yesterday, he was recalled this morning for cross-examination.

In preparing to close its case, the government sought to link Browder through Powers' testimony to a second allegedly fraudulent passport.

The prosecution, through the testimony of Nicholas Dozenberg, first-while Communist, who pleaded guilty to similar charges, sought to show yesterday that Browder obtained a passport in Dozenberg's name in 1921.

Elma Waldron, a State Department agent in Washington, was recalled as the trial resumed.

Shown a passport application made in 1927 and bearing the name of George Morris—under which name the government contends Browder obtained a passport at the time Waldron testified the applicant said in reply to a question that he never before had obtained a passport.

MEMORY AGAIN HAZY

The government claims that Browder obtained three passports under the name of Morris, Dozenberg and Albert Henry Richards—before getting one in his own name in 1934.

Browder was indicted on two counts charging he obtained his legal passport by benefit of a false statement—the declaration that it was the first to be issued to him.

Under cross-examination by Defense Counsel George Gordon Ball, Waldron said he had no recollection of the application in question.

George E. Powers, former vice-president of the International Workers' Order, whose name appears on the Morris application as identifying witness, was recalled for cross-examination.

His memory again was hazy as Ball sought to question him concerning a purported federal investigation of the Morris passport in 1929.

COULDN'T RECALL

He said he talked with a man "I think was from the Department of Justice," but under questioning by Judge Cox he said that for all he knew the man might have been from the Department of Commerce. Powers said he "thought" the name of Browder was brought up in the conversation with the unidentified man. Later he said he believed he was asked whether Morris actually was Browder, but he couldn't recall his reply.

Judge Cox pressed him for a definite answer and finally he said "Well, I told him that to the best of my knowledge Mr. Morris was Mr. Morris and Mr. Browder was Mr. Browder."

Secret U. S. Drive On Spies Here

Behind the scenes, federal agents are conducting a quiet, determined drive against the threat of spies and subversive activities in New England, U. S. Dist. Atty. Edmund J. Brandon asserted.

Addressing members of the Traffic Club of New England, the federal prosecutor stressed the need for utmost secrecy in dealing with these dangers, which he said "faces this section of the country as a result of the crisis in Europe."

Grandma Charges Kin Neglects Baby

A 56-year-old Somerville grandmother confronted her pretty 25-year-old daughter in Somerville court today and charged that daughter with the neglect of her tiny baby girl.

Mrs. Margaret Dorsey, charged by police with having leaped from a second-story window of a Marshall st., Medford, home last Sunday when police came to serve the neglect warrant on her, pleaded not guilty and her case was continued until tomorrow.

She was allowed to go under her personal recognizance of $100.

Police explained that in 1937 Mrs. Marie Rizzy of Somerville charged her daughter, Mrs. Dorsey, with the neglect of Mrs. Dorsey's then-infant, Joan Rizzy.

Mrs. Rizzy says she is bringing up the child.

Mrs. Dorsey, who also uses the name of Mrs. Eugene Leslie, according to court officials, denies she is the child's mother.

Sunday, with Somerville officers, Reid Garnet and August Cidado, and Medford police lieutenant, William McLaughlin, a raid was made on the home where Mrs. Dorsey was living.

She leaped from the window, police said, but was captured after a short chase and taken to Somerville Hospital.

There she was treated and later released.

HUB PASTOR AGAIN HITS 'FRONT' HERE

Charges that the Boston Christian Front is "part and parcel" with the New York organization, 17 members of which are under arrest for alleged conspiracy against the government were reiterated today by Rev. Donald G. Lothrop of the Community Church of Boston.

He assailed Francis P. Moran, local head of the organization as the latter steadfastly denied the Boston group is connected with the New Yorkers. The latter are accused of plotting to set up a Nazi form of government in this country.

Rev. Lothrop first made his charges at a meeting of the United States Minutemen in Knights of Columbus hall, Somerville, where Moran was guest speaker.

Moran had been invited to speak before the Minutemen before the New York arrests. Officers of the organization said they were in no way connected with the Christian Front, but were for "100 per cent Americanism."

Moran made a long speech assailing Communism and explaining that the Front was dedicated to upholding the Constitution.

From the floor the Community Church minister interrupted Moran, asking him to explain his organization's connection with Father Charles Coughlin, radio priest.

"Father Coughlin has praised the Christian Front and advised it to meet force with force," said Rev. Lothrop. "And your organization is associated with him."

"He has praised the Christian Front," said Moran, "and he has said he was sympathetic with meeting force with force as a last resort. After all, Christ used the lash to drive the money lenders from the Temple."

Rev. Lothrop retorted: "Your group as well as the national organization of which it is part and parcel is anti-Semitic and has been associated with and received the endorsement of Fr. Coughlin."

Moran persisted in his denial that the local group was connected with the New York group. He said he was not anti-Semitic and that he had often spoken in defense of Jews.

Earlier in the day he had been questioned by local agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Man Held in Stock Case Tells of Loan

Tall, impeccably dressed and never faltering in speech, 46-year-old Thomas E. Hawkes stood up in Boston police lineup today and told detectives how he borrowed $700 from a 74-year-old Virginia woman to have a back injury treated.

Instead, however, of getting treatment from a woman physician in Brockton whom he said he knew, Hawkes was arrested by Boston officers in a Back Bay hotel after he had been identified as a man wanted by Washington, D. C., authorities for alleged stock frauds. Later, at municipal court, Judge John Duff held Hawkes in $2000 on a fugitive from justice warrant issued the Boston police. Hawkes said he would waive extradition and he will leave Boston next Tuesday. Well over six feet tall, speaking in a smooth Southern accent though he explained he had formerly been a Boston man, Hawkes perspired freely as he told his story.

TELLS OF LOAN

"I was once president of the American Tung Grove Developments, Inc.," he said. "That was a co-operative organization in Guilford and Lyman, Miss., affiliated with 352 farmers in seven counties."

"We gave them trees to grow from which the tung nuts could be taken for the manufacture of tung oil and tung oil meal."

"Tung oil" is used in the making of paints and lacquers, Hawkes explained. He estimated the company had 1,000,000 shares of stock that sold when it sold—at $5 a share. "I borrowed $700 from a woman named Mattie Gundry, 74, of Church Falls, Va., to come to Boston," he continued. "I hurt my back in a fall some time ago and I knew a woman doctor in Brockton I thought could help me."

Instead, he admitted sadly, Lieut. James Crowley and Detectives Thomas Conaty and Salvatore DeNatali appeared at his luxurious suite in the hotel.

On the Washington police circular asking Hawkes' arrest was the statement that Curtis L. Jones and Charles Hastings also were wanted.

Jones was arrested by Boston officers last week for Hooksett, N. H., police, who alleged that he had been a salesman in a $30,000 cemetery racket whereby elderly persons were fleeced of cash and securities buying burial plots in a four-acre patch of weeds in Hooksett.

Seek $40,000 At F. D. Ball

A $7000 grant to continue the hunt for the infantile paralysis virus was announced today by F. J. O'Connell, chairman of the State committee for the celebration of the President's birthday.

The grant was made to Dr. Albert E. Sabin of Cincinnati. Dr. Sabin recently discovered new facts about the scourge. The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis was the donor of the grant.

Meanwhile, Chairman Peter J. Tague, of the Boston committee preparing a program for the President's Ball at the Boston Garden, Jan. 28, announced today that 15,000 reservations have already been made for the affair. The goal is Boston is $40,000.

Urges School Budget Veto Power for Tobin

A report by the Boston finance commission recommending full veto power for the mayor over any portion of the school committee's budget was in the hands today of the special legislative commission studying the Boston budget procedure.

Find Dolan Held Hospital Keys

city supply department," said Lyman.

The report also noted that most of the $40,000 spent for food during 1939 was spent with one firm, which, although it is supposedly a firm handling only meats, also supplied the jail with all sorts of canned goods and other victuals.

CHARGE RULE BROKEN

Although Morris told investigators according to the report, that his system or purchasing had the approval of the Finance Commission, Lyman said it was directly opposite to the commission's ruling made in 1935, when it was recommended that such purchases be made through the city purchasing agent.

Large quantities of goods bearing the names of well known wholesalers were found by the investigators, and Lyman points out that a middleman's profit could have been saved if the supplies were bought directly from the wholesalers.

The letter from Dowd to Mayor Tobin requesting approval for Morris' system was dated July 14, 1939.

Tobin's approval was dated three days later. The only restriction on Morris' buying powers was that the price he paid was not to exceed the current prices other city departments were paying.

"It would seem reasonable to suppose," said Lyman, "that the city auditor's office would have checked the possible payment of a middleman's profit before paying bills."

SAYS WHISKEY SERVED

Gasoline, oil and automobile grease were all purchased from two firms, the report reveals. They were the Metz Oil Co. and the Lynch Oil Co.

The investigators point out that

Metz is a brother-in-law of Morris and Lynch a brother-in-law of William J. Armstrong, former courthouse superintendent now waiting trial for conspiracy with Dowd to take bribes from county employees who wished to hold their jobs.

Coming back to the hospital situation, Lyman revealed that on one occasion Dowd himself served whiskey to prisoners.

The report says that McDonnell, although not qualified, prescribed such sedatives as pheno-barbital and luminal to inmates.

He also prescribed and served whiskey. It was noted by investigators that in an ice chest under the guardroom a substantial quantity of whiskey and other liquors was cached along with a half case of eggs.

MANY TO LOSE JOBS

A pharmacist was on the payroll, but never did anything to earn his salary, the report charges.

All prescriptions were made up by a West Roxbury druggist. The pharmacist, David Ross of Dorchester, is one of the officials whose dismissal is recommended in Lyman's report on which Sheriff Frederick R. Sullivan planned to purge the jail staff today.

The jail doctor, Dr. Paul N. Rooney of West Roxbury, was on duty only 40 minutes a day in the men's quarters and about 15 minutes a day in the women's quarters, although his job was supposed to be a full-time one, according to the report.

Only three weeks ago a prisoner, supposedly suffering from a mental ailment at the jail died 24 hours after he was taken to the Psychopathic Hospital suffering from pneumonia.

"The promiscuous use of whiskey and other liquors at the jail is demoralizing," the report says.

It recommended that the jail doctor be consulted with the view of eliminating the use of liquors except in cases of emergency.

JAILOR FEARED REVOLT

One jail officer told the investigators that when he left the jail at night:

"I was never sure the officers I left would be alive in the morning. When I left my house in the morning I never knew whether I'd come home again."

This, the officer explained, was the result of a constant fear that the inmates might revolt.

Today Sheriff Sullivan was going over the report and summoned all the attaches mentioned before him.

Included, and due for dismissal are Morris, Dr. Rooney, McDonnell, Ross, Dr. George Winchester, jail dentist; Morris Hollander, a cook, whom the reports says can't cook, and 37 others.

Sullivan said he would grant each man a private hearing, but that he intended to make instant dismissals was indicated in his request for police aid at the jail while filling the vacancies with new men.

Doyle, Connolly To Confer Today

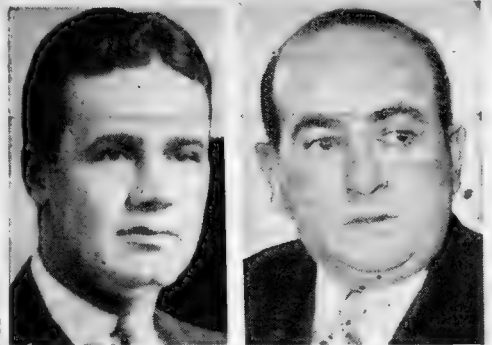

Assistant Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle was due to confer today with John Patrick Connolly, resigned clerk of Suffolk Superior court, over specifications in the prosecution's charges of job-selling which led to Connolly's indictment.

Their meeting was suggested by Judge Harold P. Williams during a Suffolk Superior court session attended by Dist. Atty. Foley at which Connolly complained he was unable to secure specifications.

If they are unable to agree on details, the court will be asked to decide their differences, Foley told the court.

FOX RAPS LYMAN FOR JAIL LAXITY

In a sharp retort to Arthur T. Lyman, commissioner of correction, whose report on conditions at Charles st. jail criticized Charles J. Fox, city auditor, Fox today charged Lyman with official laxity in permitting such conditions to exist during the past five years.

"Mr. Lynch has been commissioner of corrections since Aug. 1, 1934," Fox said in a prepared statement to the press.

"Under section 1, of chapter 124, of the general laws the commissioner of corrections is given general supervision over correctional institutions throughout the state including 'jails and houses of correction'."

"Section 2, of this same chapter provides that the commissioner 'shall keep informed as to the management and condition of all institutions under his supervision and control.'"

"The law provides that 'he, or one of his deputies shall make frequent visits to such institutions and investigate the management and conditions of the institutions and the treatment of the inmates and the books of the said institutions shall be open to his examination.'"

Fox charged Lyman had been aware of the "shocking conditions" which he reported existed at Charles st. jail, and should have been aware of the alleged "wastage" his report mentions.

"A substantial portion of that report," said Fox, "is devoted to an attempt to place the blame of allegedly existing wastage at the jail for years on my shoulders as auditor of Suffolk County."

TOBIN TO STUDY REPORT

"Why the emphasis on the 'blame'?" asked Fox. "Not only the 'wastage,' which he dwells on at length, but the 'shocking conditions,' which he states have existed there, are clearly matters which he as commissioner of corrections was required by law to take cognizance of and to correct."

"His having failed to do so accounts undoubtedly for the 'blame' emphasis in his report." Mayor Tobin said today that he had not studied Lyman's report yet, but that if any recommendations in the report would result in "sound economies" he would do so.

Roewer Drops Horace for Ed

Call him "Ed" from now on Edward Whitman Roewer.

No longer are his football-playing pals going to refer to him as "Horace," young Roewer knew today when Judge John C. Leggat in Middlesex Probate court allowed a petition to make the name change.

Captain of last year's football team at exclusive Lawrence Academy in Groton, the Belmont youth was also star pitcher on the baseball team and letter man in hockey.

Last December, in a petition filed by his father, George E. Roewer, prominent Boston attorney, he said his name "caused embarrassment in athletics and was distasteful" to him generally.

British Bare Horrors On Nazi 'Prison Ship'

LONDON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Three hundred or more British seamen captured at sea were imprisoned aboard a German tanker in conditions "recalling the days of slave traders" when the vessel was a supply ship for the pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee, a British statement charged today.

Naval sources said the tanker had not been reported for more than a month and while a search for her was being pressed it was possible she might have reached a German port.

Conditions on the tanker were described by British merchant shipmen who were liberated from the Admiral Graf Spee when she was trapped in Montevideo harbor last month. They arrived here this week.

The British statement asserted the prison quarters were crowded, rations were insufficient, smoking was forbidden and British officers were humiliated before East India crewmen, who "were given preferential treatment at every turn."

It said these prisoners were forced to sleep on mattresses covered with vermin.

The food, it added, was "scarce and bad" and the water ration for drinking and washing was a quart daily.

When the Admiral Graf Spee ran into Montevideo harbor Dec. 13 after a running battle with three British cruisers she surrendered 62 British seamen taken from nine raided merchantmen.

They were pledged to secrecy about what had happened aboard the German pocket battleship and therefore the whereabouts of other members of the crews of the raided ships was not made public immediately.

Finn Massacre Feared Unless Aid Comes Soon

LONDON, Jan. 19 (INS)—Unless heavy reinforcement of arms and ammunition arrive soon, Finland's successful resistance against the Russian invasion will collapse and then will occur one of the bloodiest civilian massacres in history, George Gripenberg, Finnish minister to London, predicted today.

Finnish troops are being inspired to superhuman efforts, he said, by the knowledge that if the Russians overrun Finland, wholesale massacres of the civilian population will follow, with tens of thousands sent into exile in Siberia.

"Our urgent problem is lack of bullets and shells," Gripenberg told International News Service.

"The Russians seem to have an endless supply of munitions and guns. "Because of the scarcity of reserve supplies, we have to conserve our shells and bullets, and our troops hold their fire until the Russian advance is almost upon them, and then cut loose with devastating effect."

War Briefs

HELSINKI, Jan. 19 (INS)—Soviet warplanes resumed activity in various parts of Finland today, bombing Abo, Hangö, Karls, Kotka and Kouvola and necessitating a 50-minute air raid alarm in Helsinki itself. Little damage was done in the first-named towns and initial reports did not indicate any loss of life or extensive destruction in Helsinki.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 19 (INS)—A number of foreign planes, believed to have been British, flew over northeastern Holland at a high altitude yesterday. It was officially announced today. Anti-aircraft guns opened fire, the announcement said.

PARIS, Jan. 19 (AP)—In a flurry on the western front the allied high command reported capture of "a few prisoners," taken when a German detachment was repulsed in an attack on a French outpost in the Vosges Mountains.

Russia's Salla Army In Fierce Battle

HELSINKI, Jan. 19 (AP)—Stalked by knife-like cold, hunger and Finnish skiers, Soviet Russia's Salla army—heretofore the most successful of the war—was reported fighting a fierce battle today at Markajarvi to protect the retreat of 40,000 men toward the Russian border, still 50 miles distant.

Whether the main body of Russians was engaged was not clear. The terse Finnish communique said:

"Our troops have advanced 45 kilometers (about 28 miles) in the Salla sector during the past few days. The enemy has been pushed back from Joutsijarvi to Markajarvi, for possession of which fighting is proceeding." Foreign military observers read into this statement a suggestion of major developments in the early future.

FINNS CAUGHT UNAWARE
It was in this sector that the Russians drove deepest into Finland, reaching a point only 18 miles from the railroad at Kemijarvi. Thus, the withdrawal was under their immediate objective.

The sudden retreat apparently caught the Finns flat-footed momentarily.

They expressed belief that the Russians would at the least dig in for the winter and hold well-fortified lines in their effort to separate northern and southern Finland. Thus, the withdrawal was under way before the Finns set out in pursuit.

Finnish ski patrols, repeatedly cutting off Russian supplies, were credited with forcing the Russians into a retreat complicated by the severest winter in more than a half century.

EAT HORSE MEAT

A Finnish detachment which reported occupation of a Russian camp in the Salla area shortly after the Red army's departure said flesh had been sliced from dead horses, apparently for food, and that the bark was gnawed from trees, probably by horses seeking fodder.

They said the Russian dugouts were skillfully built of logs, earth and stones, and camouflaged with pine boughs.

The withdrawal apparently began Sunday, the Finns said, reporting they were puzzled at first by the quiet of the Russian lines. Cautious reconnaissance by ski patrols disclosed that the enemy had departed. The main body of Finnish troops followed.

To the south, the Finnish communique said, "several strong enemy patrols" were wiped out in the Aittoljoki and Kuhmo areas.

On the Karelian Isthmus, the cold seemed to have immobilized all activities, and at sea the story was the same.

Sweden, Norway Get Red Apology

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 19 (AP)—Soviet apologies for territorial violations of Sweden and Norway by Russian warplanes gave those countries assurance today that Red fliers had erred.

The apologies from Moscow, pleading accidental trespassing in answer to formal Swedish and Norwegian protests, came while divided counsel left in doubt how Scandinavia would respond to proposals for greater aid to Finland and military cooperation by the northern nations.

Denmark held aloof from the issue, both officially and editorially, although there were indications of her concern.

KING WILL REPLY TO HEPBURN

OTTAWA, Jan. 19 (AP)—Stirred by Ontario's condemnation of Canada's war program, the provincial Legislature was promised today a reply from Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King in the Dominion Parliament which opens next Thursday.

Reopening his criticism of the Dominion government, Premier Mitchell Hepburn at Toronto yesterday rushed through the Liberal-dominated Legislature a motion censuring the "little effort" made in the war.

Hepburn threatened to resign if the motion did not carry and it passed, 44 to 19.

Telling newspapermen he would reserve his answer for Parliament, Prime Minister Mackenzie King declared:

"The government does not intend to permit Canada's war effort to be prejudiced by future, any controversy which does not permit the most complete presentation and consideration of all relevant facts."

Hepburn based his objections on charges that Canadian troops were inadequately equipped and that the government was slow in making Canada effective arsenal. He also attacked the recent sale of a million bushels of Canadian wheat to Soviet Russia, which he called "a potential enemy."

In Ottawa, Parliament hill observers speculated on what effect the quarrel might have on progress of negotiations with the United States for the conclusion of a St. Lawrence seaway and power agreement.

Claim Jap Army Beaten At Canton

HONGKONG, Jan. 19 (AP)—Chinese officials declared today that a series of Japanese defeats in Kwangtung Province had resulted in virtual encirclement of Canton, chief city of South China, by advancing Chinese armies.

The Chinese asserted that Japanese outer lines defending Canton were "crumbling" and that the Japanese had met in Kwangtung one of their most serious reverses of the whole war.

They declared that since the Japanese began a retreat from Yingtak, important station on the Canton-Hankow Railway 80 miles north of Canton, the invaders had been pushed back more than 50 miles. The Chinese lines, they said, now form an arc, with its right, or western extremity, only 18 miles from Canton and the center and left only 25 miles from the city.

Canton, normally with a population of 1,500,000, was seized by the Japanese after a lightning campaign in October, 1938, and since then has been the base for their extensive operations in south China.

For several days the Japanese have been silent on the Kwangtung campaign. Last week they admitted some of their forces were withdrawing from the northern part of the province, explaining that had been sent there only to mop up Chinese armies and that their mission had been accomplished.

Yesterday the Chinese reported the killing of 500 Japanese in a battle 33 miles north of Canton.

London Blast Under Probe

LONDON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Although Scotland Yard's sabotage squad worked on the case, the government denied today that there was reason to suspect that sabotage caused yesterday's mysterious explosions which killed five persons and injured 30 at the Waltham Abbey munitions plant.

The home office and ministry of supply issued a communique which said that "on information at present available there is no reason to suspect that these explosions were caused by sabotage."

"The whole matter is being investigated by an official committee of inquiry."

U. S. Citizens Lose Under Gold Ban

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

Special to Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—A complete and thorough analysis of the extent which New Deal policies have aggrandized the foreigner at the expense of American citizens would constitute one of the most shocking chapters in the long history of economic follies since Mr. Roosevelt became President in 1933.

Such an analysis—instructive though it would be—has never been made in Congress. No one person, so far as this writer is aware, has a complete grasp of the whole scope of the subject.

Here and there individuals have got their clutches upon a few vital facts, but the whole story remains to be told. It may take years to get all the parts of this economic cut-out puzzle fitted together.

When Mr. Roosevelt took the country off the gold standard in 1934 an American citizen with a $20 gold piece was compelled to present it at the Treasury.

BONUS FOR FOREIGNERS

If he did not do so, he could be thrown in jail. American citizens brought their gold in, and for his $20 piece each was given a paper $20 bill.

But if the foreigner presented his $20 gold piece, the treasury gave him $15.33—an ounce more for it than was given to the American.

Under this policy to date the United States Treasury has paid to foreigners a bonus, or subsidy, amounting to the staggering total of some $4,000,000,000.

The Roosevelt administration has denounced the trade treaty with Japan, and the enormous markets in Japan for American goods is jeopardized.

HELLED JAPS FINANCE WAR

Yet while the administration makes this show of resentment against Japan for her policies in China, the government under the administration, in a three-year period alone for which figures are available, bought from Japan $453,032,591 in gold, at $35 an ounce—for gold worth $20.67 an ounce. Of this a subsidy of $183,743,462 was paid by this government to Japan.

In other words, although so indignant over Japan's war in China that we are going to break off trade treaty relations with her, the New Deal has actually helped Japan to finance that war.

And with the other hand—export import bank—it has loaned $25,000,000 of money taken from American taxpayers, to China under conditions which virtually make it a gift.

The New Deal Administration has bought millions of gold from Russia and thereby paid to Moscow a fat subsidy—also at the eventual expense of American taxpayers who are as yet unborn.

This gold policy has worked steadily against American trade

STOCKS UP AFTER EARLY DIP

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—Stocks reached for a rally in today's market and leaders grasped gains of fractions to a point or so.

The comeback was accomplished after a hesitant start. Steels, off at the opening, regained their equilibrium and added modest plus signs. Volume picked up a bit on the revival, but there were numerous slow intervals.

Speculative forces generally maintained their conservative attitude toward the market and early buying was attributed partly to the belief the recent slide may have been overdone. Fears of a sizable spring business recession persisted, but the majority of new items seemed encouraging.

Standard Gas & Electric preferred stocks on the "Big Board," together with the company's bonds in the curb, suffered another setback on top of their fall of yesterday, but most later recovered partially. Selling here was blamed on recapitalization rumors which an authoritative source said were unjustified on the basis of today's facts.

Pressure Grows To Free Gold

"Sound Money is Convertible Money" . . . That in essence, is the dictum of those lauding the recent suggestion of Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National Bank, that the United States restore free coinage and a free market for gold. . .

THESE OBJECTIVES

Should become the insuperable "must" item on the agenda of the current session of Congress. Common sense economics demands loosening of golden fetters preventing attainment of a permanent, underpinning monetary system. Removal of present restrictions and prohibitions in regard to gold will achieve this . . . Simply by restoring to the dollar the tangible value which is inherent in convertibility alone . . . At the same time gold will be put to uses far better than idleness in the murky caverns of treasury repositories.

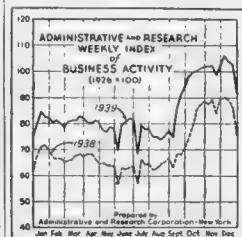

IMMEDIATE

Action directed toward free gold coinage and trading will result in two-fold good . . . The huge excess banking reserves troubling the financial world will diminish . . . And the metal will be pressed into general use as a monetary unit . . . The first will help free the banking system of reserves so vast that effective use can not be made of them . . . Thus solving a professional problem of bankers . . . While the second will mean guarding the value of gold as a metal . . . A major consideration to a nation holding 60 per cent of the world supply . . .

ANOTHER . . . Argument which might be arrayed on the side of a free gold backed currency is the position of the U. S. as conservator of a world monetary system . . . With all other principal nations victims of unstable money this country alone is in a position to promote stability . . . Here the internationalists might find a more plausible cause than trade tinkering . . . For once the dollar is stabilized the sources of convertibility other currencies will be quickly tied to it . . . With domestic trade and prestige the ultimate beneficiaries . . . It is a propitious moment for the replacing of banking incursions with cooperative banking legislation . . .

STOCK MARKET

indicates the imminence of a test of recent lows . . . The steels are the downside group and they slip off at the first sign of offerings . . . While leadership is generally attributed to such issues as U. S. and Bethlehem it is not necessarily true that as they go the whole list must go . . . On the contrary experience clearly teaches that steel finish out broad market movements more often than they start them . . . And it is our opinion that the coming settling down of the trade line has been taken into a rather generous account . . . With steels now having a tag and slump because of spreading fears that contraction of orders will precipitate price cutting . . .

NOTEBOOK . . . The war may be a forgotten incident in the life of the stock market but commodities continue to keep an eye on European news . . . In cocoa it is felt British holdings will come on the market if prices get too buoyant . . . While the grain trade match consumption estimates with poor growing conditions and conclude prices can work higher . . . In several other directions the answer is the same . . . Those who think business has too much of a move on war might compare 1938 and 1939 . . . The chart shows sharp upwings are natural.

General Mills Sets New Policy

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (INS)—James F. Bell, chairman of General Mills, Inc., one of America's leading manufacturers, revealed to me a novel policy of insisting that firms which sell his company machinery and materials comply with the wage and other social standards which this executive has set for his own company.

A circular letter to this effect has been sent to all the company's sources of supply. This sets a new precedent in industry, for heretofore chief executives have commonly limited their sphere of responsibility to those who are directly on their own payroll.

Bell made this innovation because he believes that all business is interrelated, and that discontent and bad conditions in one plant spread dissatisfaction and depression in others.

"In our activities with our employees and in our relations with the public, we set standards of decency. Accordingly, it seems inconsistent for us to bear down on prices of the things which we buy from other concerns to such an extent that they are forced to cheat."

"Business is interdependent, and we know that we are all better off when every link in the economic chain gets a chance to flourish."

Illustrating the significance of the company policy, Bell cited an instance whereby his company and other manufacturers, whose cooperation was sought, influenced a supplier who was sweating labor.

They forced this source of supply to raise the standards in its own shop.

As a phase of this new policy, Bell instructed the company's corps of transportation managers to deal fairly with the motor and give them a rate which would enable them to operate successfully. He pointed out that the carriers were the delivery system of the company and that wholesale bankruptcy of carriers would ultimately injure his own corporation.

Mr. Bell stressed that he was less interested in whether the rate was high or low than in making sure that there was no discrimination in rates as among the shippers or other geographical areas.

Bell berated the mania for a low price, and urged fellow executives to consider what lies behind price. He said that fair and balanced prices were needed to perpetuate American living standards, and that he was opposed to unreasonable bargain hunting which tore down social standards and made for widespread popular discontent.

Bell entertained more than 300 stockholders at the fifth of a series of regional stockholders' meetings which his company has pioneered in. He said that he hoped other corporations with upwards of 15,000,000 stockholders in the aggregate would emulate this innovation, and made clear the new responsibilities of ownership.

Harvard Deposits B. & M. Rail Bonds

Henry A. Wood, Jr., deputy treasurer of Harvard College, states that a block of $556,000 par value of Boston & Maine bonds, comprising $205,000 4 1/2s of 1961 and $351,000 5s of 1967, held by Harvard, have been deposited in assent to the plan of readjustment.

"We think it is a plain case where the public interest, as well as that of the railroad, makes assent to the readjustment plan of the railroad advisable," said Mr. Wood. "It is a plan which seems perfectly fair to all parties."

British Pound Sterling Improves

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—The British pound for delivery in 90 days was quoted at only 3 1/2 cents below the spot price today, close to the smallest discount since the war began. This represented a cut of 1/2 cent from yesterday.

The discount on future sterling has been narrowing steadily recently, which foreign exchange experts have attributed to strenuous efforts by the British government to bolster England's gold and foreign money reserves.

'Harvard Clip' Gone With Wind as Girls Frown

Today's "gone-with-the-wind" tale: For some time Harvard students, who affected what was euphemistically known as the "Harvard Clip," have been given what is vulgarly known as "the chill" by the girls from Radcliffe and Wellesley. Like a cold shower, the reason for it all struck them, and as a result today the "Harvard Clip"—a hairstyle that defies descriptions—has been relegated to the limbo of the old time barber pole. Barbers report the boys are turning to the regular haircut.

WAR AFFECTS DRESS, say Parisian designers. Military uniforms attract women, and they enjoy wearing them.

With not too much success, Madame Schiaparelli, Lanvin, Molyneux and other distinguished style leaders contend that such garb has a tendency to conceal beauty and lessen charm.

WAR-INSPIRED
New European Hat

So, as a compromise, they are offering military-cut tailored outfits, braided and liberally sprinkled with buttons, for daytime functions and placing great stress on the desirability of ultra-feminine gowns and hats for evening events.

Of course, designers are keenly attuned to the war spirit, and, as a concession to this, are holding their color charts to a dozen main tints instead of the 50 or 60 shades advocated in previous years.

Happily, no such restrictions and limitations need handicap American women, particularly American women who live, work and play in New England.

We are not at war. We are not making sacrifices to provide food and clothing for thousands of soldiers "at the front."

It is our good fortune to have abundant crops, surplus minerals, excellent mills, skilled labor and everything Dame Fashion will ever want.

Moreover, we have sufficient intelligence, training and ingenuity to devise styles of our own, to throw off the last yoke of European artistic dictation and to proclaim our American dress independence.

Let's do it.

NEW ENGLAND FARMERS require no introduction to the sad experience of being compelled to sell crops and commodities at prices discouragingly below the cost of production.

From the Connecticut shore to the Vermont line, the memory of flooded markets is as general as it is familiar.

Every farmer has had more than his share of the suffering, and his standard of living has been lowered as a result.

But New England farmers are not easily fooled. They know what has happened, where the trouble lies and whom to blame for their needless plight.

Popular reading therefore in the rural communities of our six States is the Department of Commerce's report revealing increased foreign competition under Secretary Hull's so-called "reciprocal" trade treaties.

Here, in the government's own figures, New England farmers are discovering that cattle imports jumped 333,686 head last year, meat products, 12,820,000 pounds; eggs, 84,482 dozens; casein, an important dairy commodity, 6,559,000 pounds; hay, 22,045 tons; potatoes, 11,757,000 bushels; canned peas, 745,000 pounds; tomatoes, 2,677,000 pounds, and maple sugar and syrup, 8,333,000 pounds.

No one should ever again find it necessary to ask why New England farmers fail to register enthusiasm for Mr. Hull and his Free Trade dreams.

This ruinous competition from the low-waged, long-houred countries abroad explains everything.

VOTING MACHINES are to have their first test this year in Brookline's Precinct Six primaries and elections.

It is the hope of the town officials that use of these devices will make possible easy and speedy voting, absolute secrecy for the voter, fewer errors and quicker returns.

But, first, voters must learn how to operate the machines.

For that reason, Town Clerk Arthur J. Shinniers is giving demonstrations of "Machine Age ballot casting" in his office.

He asks us to spread the news and, at the same time, to invite all Precinct Six residents to take advantage of the instruction opportunity.

We are pleased not only to do this, but also to add a word of advice of our own.

The time to make the acquaintance of voting machines is BEFORE election day. Voting with a minimum of delay so as to give the other fellow ample time to record his decision is more than courtesy. It is a patriotic duty.

To a Friend

HAPPY are those who have a friend . . . a friend that's loyal, true, and tried . . . in whom, whatever may portend . . . they may their hopes and fears confide. Acquaintances? One has a host . . . of these whom one is glad to see . . . But what in life you prize the most . . . is a true friend—"Yours constantly."

Mountains and seas may separate . . . two kindred souls, but thoughts have wings . . . and kind thoughts are the precious freight . . . a letter to a dear friend brings.

Your very heart of hearts you send . . . within a letter to a friend.

Human Side of News

By EDWIN C. HILL

THERE'S PLENTY to worry about as it is, and this department doesn't want to cause any unnecessary concern about things we can't help, but there's still on the boards that matter of why the sun doesn't burn up.

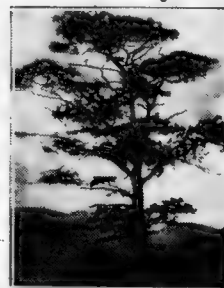

It is pertinent to the current finding of Sir George Simpson, famous British meteorologist, who discovers that the great ice ages occurred when the sun was hottest, and were caused by this increase in solar heat.

In the generally cockeyed condition of this planet, one paradox more or less doesn't matter much, and talking it over with one of my scientific mentors, I found that an excursion out into space is a pleasant antidote for events near at hand. It gets us into what Benjamin DeCasseres' revered ancestor, Spinoza, calls "the viewpoint of eternity."

If the sun were just a big bonfire, it would have been a dead cinder billions of years ago.

SO FAR as exact and explicit knowledge is concerned, every scientist who ever tackled the question of why the sun goes on burning, like a lamp without oil, has been thrown for a loss.

They have, however, pieced together a theory, out of which came modern quantum mechanics, a glimpse of a vast new domain of possible cosmic understanding, and, curiously enough, a King's-X zone for the would-be free spirit who would get clear of the leg-irons of the old rigid "network of causation," which also chafed the above illustrious Benedict Spinoza.

ATOP MOUNTAIN

Niels Bohr, Scandinavian physicist, was one of the first to seek a clue to the understanding of matter in the durability of the blazing sun, to be followed by Planck and Heisenberg of Germany and Dr. Albert Einstein. All trails led to the basic element: hydrogen. Its electrons run in concentric circles.

One jumps the fence into the next racetrack. There is a discharge of energy without diminution of volume. But if you clock the horses too closely the relation between the knower and the known somehow fouls the equation—as Spencer's epistemology destroyed his Absolute.

To sum up, the discovery that the sun isn't just a conflagration and an effort to learn why it keeps on radiating heat have touched off the most exciting intellectual field day ever recorded on this particular fleck of cosmic dust.

A FEW years ago, a highly respectable and soundly certified scientist expounded to me a theory that the sun was not hot. He cited the fact that the nearer you get to the sun the colder it is—as on Mt. Everest.

His theory was that the sun was a dynamo, radiating light waves which were not heat, as we know it, but energy. Meeting the resistance of the air of the earth, they were converted into heat.

Contact with a thin, outer layer of air, as on a mountain top, produces slight heat, but a great deal as the ray ploughs through the heavier air down to sea shore.

I do not believe that any sound astro-physicist, like Dr. Abbott of Washington, indorses the cold sun theory. The sun is still supposed to be hot. But the idea keeps bobbing up, and it is illustrative of vast uncertainties in our one dependable certainty—life-sustaining sunlight.

MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19—Many of you have probably wondered during the past week, just as I did, what would happen to the wives, mothers and children of the men who were killed in the mine disaster in West Virginia.

It is bad enough to lose someone you love, but that is something which all of us experience. However, to face the fact that with the loss goes the food and shelter of the family is stark tragedy which, fortunately, all of us do not have to face.

I FELT that this emergency did face those families waiting at the mouth of the mine or the bodies of their men to be brought up. Therefore, I was very happy when a representative of the Social Security Board telephoned to tell me that out of the 92 miners who were killed 73 of them were currently insured under the Federal Old Age Survivors system.

The widows and children will be eligible to monthly benefits under this system. There is a chance that some of the 19 others may also be insured, though the employers' records already in do not show it.

That is a dramatic illustration of what this program means to us, for I know that all of you will sleep more quietly at night knowing that, at least, starvation will not face these families.

When we were living in New York City, after my husband had left the Navy Department, I remember our going to a clubhouse which at the time was run for Navy and Army men in New York City. The Navy League was one of the organizations responsible for the running of this clubhouse, as an evidence of the interest in the Navy personnel.

Now I have received a notice stating that the New York branch of the Navy League of the United States is putting on a membership drive. For many years I knew something of their work, I am still interested in their expansion, for I think the U. S. should know and support its Navy.

We may differ as to the size of the navy that we need, but that is for experts to decide. We cannot, however, differ as to our interest in the ships and the men who are the backbone of our first line of defense.

WE HAD a very enjoyable musical here. A young pianist, born in California, Mr. Ezra Rachlin, gave everyone great pleasure by playing a delightful program. Miss Charlotte Kraus, a young Austrian refugee, who sang for us when the Danish Crown Prince and Princess were at Hyde Park, sang again here very charmingly.

NEW YORK MAY FILM EVANS' "HAMLET"

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Kilian, the German bike rider and six-day race champ, who had been conscripted into the Nazi army, will arrive in this country tomorrow. Only one man will await him at the pier—Trainer Vincent Denarie, a Frenchman. . . . A movie course, similar to the drama courses at Harvard and Yale, will be added to the C. C. N. Y. curriculum at the next school term. . . . The Hakim Bros., who produced a series of French prize-winning movies, will leave for Hollywood this week to confer with Maurice Evans about screening his uncut "Hamlet" in New York. . . . The British Government this week ordered 2,000,000 copies of Harold Nicholson's "Why Britain Is at War"—to distribute among its soldiers, who might like to know.

GREGORY RATOFF is directing "I Was an Adventurer, and in the cast are Vera Zorina, Fritz Feld, Peter Lorre and Eric von Stroheim. And so, over the studio door Ratoff has placed a sign: "No English Spoken Here". . . . Von Stroheim assured Gregory: "I will co-operate with you completely. When I'm in a picture I put myself entirely in the director's hands". "Good," Ratoff beamed. "Who directed your last picture?" Von Stroheim bowed and answered: "I did."

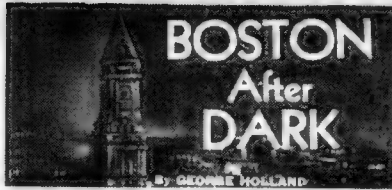

MERRY FAHRNEY CASINI went from night club to night club Monday evening entertaining a party of friends, and at each place she offered a $1000 bill in payment of the check. . . . At 3:30, after consuming $50 worth of wine and food, Merry again proffered her $1000 bill. "It's the smallest bill I have," she yawned, "and I need cash far home". . . . John Perona went to his downstairs safe and brought the change, in six bills. One bill was for $500, four were $100 bills and one for $50. . . . "Here's your change," he stated. "That's the smallest I have."

J. EDGAR HOOVER used a new car, with bullet-proof glass three inches thick, in making his "Christian Front" roundup. The first civilian to ride in that car was Brenda Frazier, Sunday night. . . . Backstage at the Guild Theater Monday night a reporter asked Eleanor Roosevelt what she thought of "The World We Make." "I'd like to be the first to report what you thought of the show," said the reporter. Eleanor replied: "Oh, I can't tell you. I'm a newspaper woman."

DWIGHT WIMAN announced Wednesday that a young Hindu student named Sregdor Drabner had submitted the prize-winning title, "Higher and Higher," for the new Rodgers and Hart show. The "Hindu" was Richard Rodgers, whose name was spelled backwards.

VERA ZORINA

BOSTON After DARK

By GEORGE HOKLAND

EXCLUSIVE: Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation checked the stock of rifles and machine-guns at the Commonwealth Armory as the commencement of a Boston aftermath of the New York investigation of asserted "revolutionaries" of the New York Christian Front. . . . The G-men's expedition to the Commonwealth avenue plant followed a conference with the state adjutant general, and a parley at the department of purchase and supply. . . . These visits were for the purpose of arming the agents with a complete list of supplies on hand at the Brighton armory.

COINCIDENT WITH THE G-MEN'S Boston check-up, the column learned from an authoritative source that the New York investigation of the Christian Front had a Boston beginning. . . . Instead of a plot to "overthrow" the United States Government (including eleven or twelve Congressmen) and an outburst of anti-Semitism, the investigators had been tipped that an entirely different ending was probable. . . . The source of aid being given from this side to the Irish Republican Army was the real object of the search.

THE BOSTON CHRISTIAN FRONT continues to disclaim connection with the New York "revolution". . . . Investigators are reported to be startled at the scope of the local organization and the number of its members. . . . The case presented by the Boston organization is said to require considerable delicacy of handling. . . . Word reaches here that a peek at the enrollment rolls to be the subject of widespread amazement. . . . The F. B. I. follows a policy of not discussing any of its activities until arrests have been made. . . . Meantime, the oversighted would like to make it very clear that the above report of the G-men's activities in this neck of the woods yesterday is a ramification of the New York blow-off which shot plans and plots into thin air—and sixteen alleged "revolutionaries" into cells.

GENTLEMEN OF THE PRESS who were assigned to the visit of Dr. Eddie Anderson, former Holy Cross mentor and the 1939 "football coach of the year," may have noticed a gap in the eminent doctor's schedule. . . . Here is what he was doing. . . . When Dr. Anderson coached at Holy Cross he lived in Brookline in the off-season. . . . Several years ago he became interested in a Brookline high school boy. . . . The kid was the son of a hard-working caretaker of a Fisher Hill estate. . . . He was not a great athlete, but the lad's character and possibilities impressed Dr. Anderson.

WHEN IT CAME TIME for the youth to go to college, the Holy Cross coach was consulted. . . . The matter of money was a serious consideration. . . . Dr. Anderson was leaving Holy Cross and probably did not wish to ask a favor of that institution. . . . (The story is that the doctor didn't really expect to leave Holy Cross). . . . And he was a stranger to the campus of Iowa, where he was about to begin a first season of coaching. . . . But the doctor had a valuable connection with another Iowa institution (either Columbia or

OLIVIER TO CO-STAR WITH GARSON

By Louella O. Parsons

Laurence Olivier

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 19 Only a few days ago someone whispered in my ear that Vivien Leigh was chafing at the bit because Laurence Olivier was urging her to go on a tour and present a series of Shakespearean plays. She couldn't go because she was signed for "Waterloo Bridge" with Robert Taylor. Today everything was changed when Laurence was signed also by M-G-M to co-star with Greer Garson in "Pride and Prejudice." Interestingly enough, these two appeared together on the London stage in "Golden Arrow."

Now that Laurence is on the same lot with Scarlett she'll be happy and ready to wait for his Shakespearean tour. I'd like to make a wager that when Vivien and Laurence appear together in "Romeo and Juliet," they'll fill the theaters. So many questions have been asked about them—when they would marry, etcetera. The answer is simple as soon as both are legally free they will wed—as we told you first in this column months ago.

IDA LUPINO

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Our glamour girls really went to work at the Franco-British war relief fund dance at the Ambassador Wednesday night and not only sold cigarettes but danced at $5 a twirl. Merle Oberon had her cigarette tray so piled high with greenbacks that Benita Hume Colman had to help her. Elaine Shepherd had the honor of selling Mayor Bowron a package of cigarettes and even the mayor didn't get back any change, nor did he want it. He and Mrs. Bowron were at Alan Mowbray's table with the Bob Hopes, British Consul Eric Kleugh and Mrs. Kleugh, Stephen Raphael and others. Alan, Charles Boyer and Ronald Colman deserve a lot of credit for putting over the greatest charity affair ever given in Hollywood.

THE BIG NAMES were not only there but worked hard to put over the affair socially and financially. To see Claudette Colbert, Myrna Loy, Merle Oberon, Pat Peterson, Annabella, Maureen O'Sullivan, Maureen O'Hara, Joan Fontaine, Ida Lupino, Wendy Barrie and Binnie Barnes descend upon the paying customer and collect bills in payment of cigarettes was wonderful.

I TOLD Richard Barthelmess and the twelve other lads who sang "Silver Threads Among the Gold" and "The Flying Trapeze," that I would be willing to take them on a personal appearance tour. Wouldn't the theaters do a land-office business with Brian Aherne, Bill Powell, Bart Marshall, Ronald Colman, Alan Mowbray, Charles Laughton, Laurence Olivier, Charles Boyer, Ralph Forbes and the other stars warbling—not a singer in the crowd.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

AT SIX THIRTY Janet set the dinner table, her skillful fingers arranging and re-arranging the silver, smoothing the cloth, placing the roses. Everything just had to be perfect tonight, the eve of their first wedding anniversary.

Her task ended, she darkened the room, switched on the radio, settled down to read.

The clock chimed seven, Janet's pretty forehead creased into an anxious frown. It had never been this late. Two hours late!

SHE TWISTED the radio dial aimlessly and paled as the attired voice of an announcer knifed its message into her consciousness:

"News flash! We interrupt this program to make an important announcement. Three persons were seriously injured in a Garner Street Bank hold-up. Fred Lowrey, bank clerk, was killed by the two daring bandits who escaped with . . .

The voice blurred into a meaningless drone. Fred dead! No! Oh, no! There must be some mistake. She dropped into the velvet softness of the chair, leaned back, closed her eyes. . . .

She had been just one of the many cheering spectators at that annual football classic. Fred was one of the hopeful substitutes. Then his chance came, and with blazing, admiring eyes, Janet had watched him blast his way through the lines and tear down the field to score the winning touchdown.

Meeting him was easy. Then came dances, parties, moonlit nights, until finally: "You do love me, don't you, Janet?"

They stood on the lawn in the shadow of the Fraternity house that blissful night.

"I'm going right into the bank after graduation. It's a good job and I'll make you happy, dear." And his strong arms had held her, crushed her.

Now he was dead—DEAD!

JANET STIFLED A SOB. Then the slam of the apartment door, the thud of hurrying footsteps ended her reverie, and Janet—WHO MIGHT HAVE BEEN A SORROWING WIDOW—smiled at her husband and said:

"I thought you'd never come, Wendal. Were you on a case?"

How satisfying to have chosen safe Dr. Wendal Farrel! He was never in danger. Fear Fred.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

ONE OF MY friends has a strange quality. HE SETS PEOPLE FREE. I do not mean that he sets their body free, although he has done this for many a broken man. There is a greater feat than setting bodies free, and that is the freeing of spirits. My friend sets spirits free.

HE SETS SPIRITS FREE FROM FEAR, FEAR OF THE WORLD, AND FEAR OF THEMSELVES.

When you come into my friend's presence you are suddenly at ease. You breathe better. You do not actually realize that you are breathing better, but the relief is there.

You know how it is when you come out on the top of a high mountain. Far below lie the crowded places—the little walled in roads that smell of dust and smelted humanity—the little walled in thoughts that smell of greed and hate. And about you lie the sunlight and the endless sky and the clean, cool air that goes on and on to God.

THAT'S THE WAY one feels in the presence of my friend.

Now, perhaps you are thinking that my friend achieves this miracle by some secret, saintly magic. Nothing of the sort. I do not believe that man has a saintly body in his body. If he has, it must be having a long overdue time of it. He has lived a very full and highly explosive life. He has done a large number of things he should not have done, and I suspect he is ready to do most of them again at a moment's notice. There is no odor of sanctity about him—not even a smiff.

Nor has he any creed or high-sounding slogans. He makes no attempt to reform people or inspire them. Nor does he pity or console them. HE SIMPLY DOES NOT JUDGE THEM.

He ACCEPTS people as they are without a question. He never asks what they have done. He does not even care what they have done. He only cares for THEM—for that INNER self which is so strangely remote from the acts of the body.

BECAUSE he does this he releases people from fear. And for a little while the spirit stands tall and straight and proud, and breathes as free men breathe on a mountain top.

It is amazing how honest and brave people become if you release them from fear—if you let them breathe like free men. But you must be a mountain-top yourself to do it. You must have risen far, far above the desire to clutch and punish. As my friend has.

DePaul—would be our guess, as he had coached at both places).

DR. ANDERSON recommended the boy to whichever Iowa college it was, and managed to get the kid a scholarship and a job to pay for his board and room. . . . Well, where the "doc" could have been found for more than an hour yesterday was at the little home of the caretaker and his wife. . . . He was giving a glowing report of their boy's progress—way out there in Iowa, but at a college other than the one which Dr. Anderson, as good as owner, perhaps the Brookline lad will transfer to Iowa next year. . . . Even though he is not a football player. . . . And this little incident certainly should afford a hint to the character of the man who became the 1939 "coach of the year."

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Tommy Carr the young sportsman from Middlehead who is Bruce Wetmore's afternoon companion when the Suffolk Downs Paddock Club is open for business, swapped a life of comparative ease for an announcer's job in Charlie Phelan's new Salem radio station WEEI. . . . The young man is a sports fanatic and found his background very useful. . . . After paying $6500 for a season's rental of a Miami Beach bungalow, found eight or ten hours a day on the air for a fee comparable to what he'd be giving away in tips in Florida.

THE SPORTSMEN'S AND BOAT SHOW gave a preview of a couple of its new attractions at the Statler Georgian Room, and the press—in large numbers—was represented. . . . A sextet of Hopi Indians, with unpronounceable names, went through the routines of the famous Hopi victory dance and the Hunt dance. . . . We at last—learned the origin of jibber-jabber. . . . The guy who started that unlamented dance of a year ago undoubtedly had a dash of Hopi in him. . . . This year's show, with Sheldon H. Fairbanks at the helm as usual, will be the biggest yet. . . . Feb. 3 is the starting date.

A hookup has been made with the Museum of Natural History this year, and a thrilling climb of Mt. Sanford, Alaska, with Brad Washburn, the Boston explorer and museum director, describing the feat with lantern slides, will be a feature. . . . Had did his stuff for the reporters last night. . . . He was great. . . . And watch for the Sunday Advertiser story of Father Hubbard, the glacial or is it glaciery—priest. . . . Father Hubbard will have an exhibit at this year's Sportsmen's show, too.

CHATTER: John W. Garner for President headquarters will be opened forthwith at the Parker House. . . . Initial expense money arrived in town last night. We hear that Hale Power, always a James M. Curley brain-truster, will be in command locally. . . . This does not mean, necessarily, that the former governor will be in the Garner camp. . . . For that matter, what are the odds that the ruddy-faced Texan will be in the fight after Roosevelt is drafted? . . . Which reminds us that no attention is given at all as to whether it would be too unprecedented for a Vice-President to declare for a third term!

You Can be Beautiful

Facial in a Capsule

By ARLINE GOULD

GIVE YOURSELF a wintry-weather facial every day while the winds blow and the blizzards whoop and whistle . . . for you can actually give yourself one of ritzy salon proportions with little effort and big results.

These will go a long way in substituting for your beauty sleep when the social season gets in full swing. And it's a wonderful work-out for facial muscles that are apt to sag under the impact of hot interiors and freezing blasts.

Use the marvelous "cream in capsules," which is unadulterated cream with no base wax added. It pours like a rich, thick oil, which it is. But don't worry about the oiliness if your skin is that way too. For it comes in three versions. One is solely for cleansing. The other for oily skins, and one for daily care of dry skin.

Not a drop of water is used in making these facial capsules, it is all pure, concentrated oils.

When using it before bedtime or before going out, select the facial . . . not the cleansing capsule . . . and go to work with firm, kneading pressure, not pulling. Your skin will react with a little tingle and it will look fresh as a daisy sitting in a field. In a dollar box there are 30 capsules, enough for that many treatments!

If you would like all further information on these facial treatment capsules, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days until 5:30, or write, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Seafood Recipes That Have Won Praise

By MARTHA DEE

It requires sharp wits to write hit plays three years in a row. Clare Boothe, author of "The Women," has done that, and the fact that she is an ardent seafood enthusiast may have something to do with it. Although she likes all fish and seafood, Miss Boothe particularly goes for shrimp. Writing of her favorite food she says:

"The only way they should be eaten is at once a man, shrouded out of the ice-box and out of the can one by one. This recipe I know will be of more interest to the house-husbands than to the housewives all over the country. That's what a famous playwright thinks of seafood. If you want to know how to cook fish and seafood write to the Fishery Council for a free cook book. You can reach them at Fulton Market, New York City. Following are some typical recipes:

PAN FRIED BUTTERFISH

Roll fish in seasoned flour or cornmeal. Sauté quickly until brown on one side. Carefully turn and brown on other side. The flesh is so soft, fish will break if not handled carefully while cooking.

PANNEE DASH-DILL SAUCE

Roll small dabs in seasoned flour. Sauté on both sides. Add 2 green onions or 1 small, minced onion and 1/2 cup mayonnaise. Season with dash of peppercorns (tabasco). Serve with fish.

BAKED SMELTS

Put large smelts, seasoned with salt and pepper in oiled baking dish. Spread each with thick coat of tartar sauce with good oil. Bake in hot oven a few minutes.

SAUTEED COD STEAKS

Codsteaks are soft. They flake easily so care must be used in cooking not to break them. Wipe steaks with damp cloth, season with salt and leave in refrigerator several hours. Dip quickly in flour and if desired, in egg and crumbs. Sauté in hot oil about 1/4 fat or oil until under side browns. Turn and brown on other side. Serve with lemon, cheese or tomato sauce.

FISH CUPS WITH EGGS

Mix 1 cup of cooked, flaked fish, 1 cup mashed potatoes and 1 egg, beaten. Shape mixture into 6 cakes; wrap strip of bacon around each one and fasten each with a toothpick. Make a depression in each cake and drop in it a raw egg. Bake in hot oven until the egg is cooked.

TOMATOES WITH OYSTERS

Use 1 large tomato per serving and 6 small oysters. Cut tops from tomatoes and save for covers. Scoop out tomato pulp and chop. Add chopped oysters, grated onion to taste, salt, pepper and enough soft bread crumbs to hold the mixture together. Stuff tomatoes. Put 1 tablespoon butter on each, cover and bake until tomato is soft.

SHRIMPS CREOLE

Brown 1 medium size onion in 1 tablespoon butter. Add 1 1/2 cups tomatoes fresh chopped or canned pulp. Boil 2 minutes. Add 4 sticks celery, diced, 1 small clove garlic minced, small piece bay leaf, pinch of thyme, and salt and pepper to taste. Simmer sauce 10 minutes. Add 1 pound cooked shrimp. Cook 10 minutes longer. Sauce will be very thick. Serve with steamed brown rice and a green salad.

CREAMED SHRIMP

Melt 2 tablespoons butter. Stir in 3 tablespoons flour. When boiling, add 1 1/2 cups milk slowly and season to taste with salt and pepper. Cook 5 minutes. Add 1 cup cooked shrimp. Simmer until shrimp is heated. Serve inside a ring of rice. Decorate with broiled tomato slices and broccoli.

SAUTEED FILETS

Filets are soft-meated and so must be handled carefully. Trim off ragged edges and bits of fin bones. If large, cut in serving pieces. Dip pieces in seasoned flour or crumbs, then in egg and crumbs. This method keeps all juice in fish. Sauté brown on both sides. Serve with lemon and any desired sauce—should be passed, not poured over filets.

Divorcee Has Name Problem

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—I have been divorced from my husband for about a year. I have a son six years of age. At the time the divorce was granted, the lawyer told me that it wasn't necessary to restore the maiden name. As a result I still use the name I used before I was divorced. Is this right? How should I sign my name? Someone told me that I shouldn't sign "Mrs." anymore. Please advise me.

2—If my boy is named after his father, how should cards be addressed. Andrew Summers, junior, Master Andrew Summers, or Mr. Andrew Summers, Jr.?

3—I believe that what your lawyer was trying to tell you is that it is not customary for a divorced woman with a child to resume her maiden name. Naturally, this might cause complications, since there is a child to be considered.

The usual and the most dignified and the best form of name adopted by a divorced woman is the substitution of her maiden surname for her ex-husband's first name. That is, if your maiden name was Robinson, let's say, the best form of name for you to use is Mrs. Robinson Summers.

It is not considered good form to use the first name after Mrs.; therefore a divorcee should not use Mrs. Mary Summers

This is the correct form for your signature to a business letter:

Very truly yours,
MARY ROBINSON SUMMERS
(MRS. ROBINSON SUMMERS)

2—Cards and letters to your son should be addressed:

Master Andrew Summers, Jr.

Master Andrew Summers, junior
(The Jr. or junior does not take the place of the title, Master).

When he is older letters to him should be addressed

Mr. Andrew Summers, Jr. (or junior).

Love

Free Evenings For Engaged

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Your column has often been of help to me in giving valuable information, but I've never seen a problem just like mine.

I'm engaged to the grandest fellow, and we are both very much in love. The question is: How often are we supposed to see each other? I'd like him to be here every evening, but I think that's too selfish, as I'm sure his mother and sisters would like to have an occasional evening with him. Am I right?

MARIAN.

Someone has said "When in doubt use common sense." I think it's very thoughtful of you to want your fiance to spend some time at home. Many young men have obligations in the way of work to do in the evening, or family engagements, and it would be a mistake to insist on his putting these aside to be with you.

Then again, young folks who are engaged have many things to discuss. Budgets to plan, color schemes to choose, etc., so that they can't be kept apart very long at a time.

My suggestion is, even if there is nothing to keep you apart from each other, that it is a good plan to keep one or two free evenings a week.

Garage Mechanic Has a Problem

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I work in a garage, putting around cars, and get pretty messy and dirty therefore, smell of grease and oil and very often this odor remains around me. My wife often gets very disagreeable about this, and makes it unpleasant for me by talking about it all the time. I wouldn't mind it so much if she didn't bring it up around my friends. She gets me so peeved sometimes, I'm about ready to leave her. Please help me decide what I should do.

STEVE

I may say in justification of your wife's antipathy for the smell of grease and oil, that your constant contact with this odor has probably dulled your own perceptions. I certainly would not advise you to leave her on this account.

Why not make a bigger effort to get rid of the odor? Try leaving your overalls at the garage and change your outer garments when you come home. Scrub your hands with good soap and keep your fingernails clean. I am sure she will appreciate your efforts to be agreeable in this connection. Best of luck to you.

Rose-Trimmed Baby Cap

PERHAPS you've already seen one or two bonnets of this type, in some really style-wise shop . . . they're a radical departure in millinery, and have the approval of no less a one than the Duchess of Windsor.

Though you can't see this one in back (it's from the current issue of Harper's Bazaar) it is actually a little head-hugging cap, shaped much like the beanie of "Too Many Girls."

It fits the head closely right down to the hairline, and is perfectly round. And it is a trend that points to lower, more fitted crowns.

It's most becoming, we think, when trimmed with something way up front, like the natural pink roses on this, which is black velvet, with a stiff short veil.—ANNICE BRINK.

From entries from all over the U. S. A.—from Back Bay to Portland, Oregon, and from Miami to Lake Champlain—ten first prizes were awarded to Bostonians . . .

Award to Mrs. Kennard Winsor

ALONG WITH her many activities as guardian of the Boston debutante list and mother of two popular daughters, Mrs. Kennard Winsor of Chestnut Hill has managed to find time to make some lovely needlepoint articles . . . She won a first prize in the national exhibition with a colorful eye glass case which has a dainty floral design on a dark olive green background . . . And the edge is uniquely fluted with scarlet points . . . She is leaving for New York today to spend several days attending the exhibit . . .

Mrs. Frederick S. Moseley, Mrs. Samuel Cabot, Mrs. Rudolph Weld, Mrs. Henry Lyman and Mrs. Edward Warren, who is in charge of the needlework department at the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, are all going over to the exhibit next week . . . One of their chief reasons for going at the end of the show is to be able to bring home personally some of the choicest entries in the Boston collection . . .

Mrs. Moseley, who has made some fascinating little footstool covers with designs of bunnies and ducks, is another first prize winner . . . while the Cabots have certainly upheld the Boston tradition by winning first and second prizes in the class for needlepoint boxes . . . Mrs. Sewall Cabot and Mrs. Samuel Cabot, both of Jamaica Plain, were competitors in this class . . . There is no end to the latter's enthusiasm for needlework . . . She has made everything from large wall hangings to the first Social Register cover for the Industrial Union's needlework department . . .

MRS. BENJAMIN MOSELEY'S beautiful chair seats, copied from an old French wallpaper design, captured the fancy of the judges at the national show and won a first . . . Mrs. Edward Warren also captured a blue with a handsome crewel work bag, made on heavy cream linen with a brilliant Jacobean design . . .

Mrs. J. Templemann Coolidge, another Boston needlework fan, exhibited a prize winning crewel work bag . . . Miss Mary Bowditch's original animal designs done in wool were other prize winning entries . . .

There is widespread interest in several unique entries . . . One is a needlepoint rug which was made for President Roosevelt by Mrs. Tracy Dows . . . The design consists of six squares, each containing a shield representing different stages in the President's career . . . from his school days at Groton, Harvard and Columbia Law to his offices as Governor, Assistant Secretary of the Navy and President of the U. S. A. . .

Another interesting entry is lent by Mr. Edward Johnson, manager of the Metropolitan Opera . . . It was executed by Mrs. Charles E. Maxwell, Jr., and shows the former tenor in several of his important operatic roles . . . A waistcoat, made by Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., for Alexander Woolcott is another entry winning the admiration of needlework enthusiasts . . .

Women's Glands Seen Cure to Cancer

By G. B. LAL

International News Service Science Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (INS) A discovery that might lead to a chemical test for cancer in women made by prof. Gregory Pincus, of Clark University, was revealed today.

Dr. Pincus is noted for his spectacular breeding of "fatherless" rabbits through artificial fertilization of the egg-cells with salt and heat only.

With collaboration of Dr. Mark Graubard, Prof. Pincus carried out certain chemical tests upon a dozen women, five without cancer and seven with cancer of the cervix.

He found that the body of the woman is a chemical laboratory that acts differently in case of cancer, compared with normal conditions.

MADE CHEMICAL TEST

The difference in the chemical workings of the body had to do with the hormones of the ovaries. As is well known, "youthfulness" of adult women depends to a very large extent upon the production of the ovarian hormone.

Dr. Pincus injected into the body of the woman to be tested one of these hormone preparations called estrone.

After some time, the fluid secreted from the body was submitted to chemical tests which reveal how much of the injected hormone, in certain changed forms, has been discharged by the body.

In women who suffered from cancer of the cervix, estrone hormone was converted into substances that were markedly different from those eliminated by the non-cancerous women.

STUDIED AS (LUE)

Dr. Pincus' method will be published in the February issue of "Endocrinology," organ of the Association for the Study of Internal Secretions.

The general interest of his experiments is that it throws new light upon one of the most interesting clues to the cause of certain forms of cancer in human beings. Cancer of the mammary gland, reproductive organs and associated parts appear to be related to chemical changes in hormones that are basis of the continuity of the human race.

Excellent Acting Makes 'A Child Is Born' Notable Film

Feature at Paramount, Fenway

By PEGGY DOYLE

Excellent performances and thoughtful direction combine to lift "A Child Is Born" out of the run-of-the-mill maternity-ward drama classification.

Warner's film classic of woman's greatest adventure is now showing on the Paramount and Fenway screens. Opening-day audiences thronged both houses, were largely feminine and definitely baby-doters. They discovered early in the un-reeling that the picture might have been more aptly entitled "Seven Arg. Born" or "Adventure in a Maternity Ward," for while the film features Grace Sutton, a murderess released from prison only long enough to give birth to her child, it also tells the stories of five other expectant mothers. One of these, a light-headed vaudeville, has twins, bringing up the total to seven.

As you may remember, this is a twice, or rather a three-part tale. In 1932, Mary McDougall Axelson's play, "Life Begins," on which the current picture is based, made its twin debut on Broadway as a film and a legitimate production.

It hasn't the shock value of eight years ago when Hollywood had not yet begun to go in for any spade-digging. But while an average audience may not find it shocking in the customary sense, it is a certitude they will be shocked at the succession of calamities that are permitted to happen in the picture's maternity ward.

It is hardly an argument for the modern trend of hospitalization of expectant mothers. A mentally deranged patient manages to abduct a newborn infant from its incubator, disturb a wardful of mothers-to-be with her pathetic ravings and induce a heart-attack on the part of one.

Another not to pleasant incident in the ward is the impersonation act put on by the little mother-to-be of twins, the vaudeville. When we tell you she is portrayed by Gladys "Personal Appearance" George and that the impersonator is the unfortunate Grace Sutton who must serve a 20-year prison sentence when her baby is born you may appreciate the significance of this incident in a ward.

But if these features of the film may seem incredible, such cannot be said for the performances of Geraldine Fitzgerald, and her fine supporting cast. The lovely Irish star gives a portrayal beautifully restrained and poignantly real. Splendid, too, is Jeffrey Lynn's husband, Miss George, Spring

Fun Rules Howard's Midnight Show

Feature of tonight's midnight show at the Old Howard is "Fun-a-Poppin'," boasting a cast of 60 headed by Mary Lane, Roxanne, Bozo Snyder, Leonard Krammer, Diane King, Harry Reed, Murray Briscoe, Joy St. Clair and other burlesque favorites.

Byington, Harry O'Neill, Fay Helm, Jean Sharon, Nanette Fabares, Eve Arden and Gale Page are uniformly excellent.

In "City of Chance," the second feature, Lynn Bari is as pretty a girl reporter as you'll ever meet. C. Aubrey Smith, Donald Woods and Amanda Duff are involved with her in the suspenseful plot.

Enacts Own Life in New Musical

Rudolf Weis is one of the rare actors who have ever had the privilege of enacting their own biography on the stage. As Heinz Kaltbart in "Two on an Island," Elmer Rice's hit play of New York life, a the Wilbur, Weiss portrays an Austrian refugee from the mid-European madness who in his native land was an eminent and honored artist but who in the New World must begin again from the bottom accepting the humblest kind of work.

In essence, it is Weiss' own story. A Max Rainhardt pupil, he acted in Vienna at the Neues Wiener Schauspielhaus and the Theater in der Josefstadt. He later enjoyed tremendous success at Berlin's State Theater—until the advent of the Hitler scourge. Returning to Vienna, where he doubled as star and director of his own theater, he was again forced to leave at the Nazi command. He is appearing in his first American role.

"Two on an Island," which is scheduled to open on Broadway Monday evening, will give only three more performances here before its departure following tomorrow night's final performance.

BARBARA STANWYCK SUPERB IN 'REMEMBER THE NIGHT'

Delightful Love Film at Met

By PEGGY DOYLE

The days of combing your hair over your face, sitting in a corner and waiting for your prince charming have long been over—if they ever were. But if any of you hold-over Victorians doubt it, drop over to the Met this week and watch Barbara Stanwyck do some expert beau-catching in the shadow of the tail house.

Barbara has what is known as a frank gaze and a wide, honest brow and she gets around plenty in Paramount's "Remember the Night." She even gets into the swank Fifth Avenue jewelry shops and gets away with diamond bracelets without benefit of wampum.

She is arrested, on trial for stealing and faces a Christmas in the lockup but destiny in the handsome person of a strangely gallant district attorney, none other than Fred MacMurray, intervenes.

If you're still with us, don't let this introduction to one of the nicest comedy-dramas of this marrow-chilling '40 persuade you that this is the usual jury crook vs. The Law and something to be avoided. Because Preston Sturges' script, Mitchell Leisen's direction, Barbara Stanwyck's jury crook and Fred MacMurray's d.a.—to say nothing of Hulah Bondi's Ma Sargent and Elizabeth Patterson's Aunt Emma—each take such original turns that you'll never recognize the old plot.

For here is one of the most heart-warming of love stories, one that is punctuated with laughs and underlined with gaiety.

MacMurray, having arranged her bail through a friendly bondsman, offers to drive the lonely Barbara home on his way to his own home for the holidays. When her mother almost slams the door on her foot, the young d.a. generously includes the girl in his family reunion.

The Hooser Christmas doings at the Sargent homestead will warm the cockles of your heart and jiggle your funny-bone. It's all as Christmassy as holly and mistletoe or Dickens' "Christmas Carol." The sisterly wrangling as to cooking superiority between Miss Bondi's Ma Sargent and Miss Patterson's Aunt Emma is realistic enough to start an epidemic of lawsuits.

Starting Holloway's handy-man who's never handy but who can sing "End of a Perfect Day" is perfection. The same cannot be said of Fred's piano-playing, which is so bad it's good—for a cascade of chuckles. As for the stars, if they keep being this good we'll never again stray in our affection for them.

Top Vaudeville

Cass Daley, wearing a stunning white gown that occasionally concealed her inadequate red flannels, interspersed her competent caroling with a stimulating brand of comedy patter at yesterday's opening stage show at the RKO Boston.

The other featured act, the Calgary Brothers, was very funny. Not new to vaudeville boards, they have the precision and artistry to impart freshness and professional finish to their stage performances. Particularly effective is their slow-motion fight scene.

The Tophatters on roller skates, namely, Harry Leech and Betty are something to see whether or not you can maintain your equilibrium on double-runners.

Leon LaFell and his Aeolian (way they're harmonicas) Ensemble make harmony of "To You," "Tiger Rag" and "Flight of the Bumblebee." They sing, too, and just as harmoniously.

Reversing the two-men-and-a-girl arrangement, Adele, Trent and Sawyer, ballroom dancers, turn out to be two girls and a man. Their skilled stepping is easy to look at.

GLORIA STUART, blonde and lovely, shares starring honors with Charles Laughton, Raymond Massey and Boris Karloff in "The Dark House," now at the Trans-Lux.

Keith Memorial Film Colorful

By HARRIS MORGAN

The colorful, romantic days of minuetts and live boats live again in "Swanee River," handsome technicolor production with Don Ameche, Andrea Leeds and Al Jolson now showing on the Keith Memorial screen.

The picture starts with an easy, lazy tempo that somehow harmonized with a period that gave us "The Old Folks At Home" (Swanee River), "Oh! Susanna," "Old Black Joe," "My Old Kentucky Home" and many other nostalgic melodies.

These songs weave a story of America's beloved troubadour, Stephen C. Foster, who composed them. They tell of struggle, success, love. Later, there was to be suffering, poverty, loneliness and disillusion for the man whom the world forgot, although it would never stop singing his songs.

One of the loveliest of Foster's songs, "Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair," was inspired by sweet Jane McDowell, the great love of his life. He married her and their was one of those love-stories that never end come sorrow and fall and many other disillusionments.

Appropriately enough Don Ameche, an accomplished singer and pianist portrays the great song-writer, who at 36, died a broken man in a shabby Bowery rooming house. Andrea Leeds plays his wife. Al Johnson is cast as F. P. Christy, American minstrel king who introduced the famous "Mr. Interlocutor-Mr. Bones" blackface entertainment to European audiences. It was Christy who first sang Foster's songs for the American public.

Johnson is at his best in these "Mammy" sequences. The same cannot be said for Annette's troubadour characterization which fails to realize the subtle shadings demanded. Miss Leeds is a lovely Jane Foster but it is no standout role for her.

But the unforgettable Foster songs and the soothing technicolor should make up for much.

The second feature, "The Flying Deuces," reunite the screen's friendly enemies Laurel and Hardy in a horseshay and slapstick comedy of early Keystone vintage.

The MOST GLAMOROUS FIGURE IN BURLESK

Read What the Critics Say :—

Burlesque is travesty. From this hot-ton rung of the theatre has risen the bulk of the current crop of legitimate theatre and radio stars. To show you its worth, there are more burlesques houses running in the country than outside houses. Burlesque has one outstanding one in the Globe Theatre. Any one of its regular shows could easily have been aired in two, and either half presented the public for the same admission. Why the popular appeal? Because in burlesque, the man and woman patron can relax and see slap-stick at its bright, comical without restraint. It is known as the most man's follies. That gentlemen need-to-be, so far as I'm concerned, have covered hundreds of burlesque shows for the billboard, and variety and time after time I have stated that they are equally as entertaining and attractions as vaudeville productions.

A DOG'S LIFE

A Complete Short Story
Daily on This Page

By CHARLES
McGUIRK

IF you had ever told Annette Fyfe that she would not only fall in love on sight with a gentleman but would beg, entice and cajole him into the living room of her cottage and, having done so, would throw her arms around him and hug him until the breath was almost squeezed out of him, she would either have ordered you out of her sight or laughed at you.

Nevertheless, this is exactly what she did with Alec.

To be specific, on the night of the 23rd of January, she, Annette Fyfe, spinster, well-known Broadway actress and in Stonington, New Jersey, for a rest, did feloniously and with malice aforethought and very probably with larceny in her heart, coax one Alec into the living-room of the cottage she had rented from the Athlison's and did thereupon throw her arms about him with little moans and sighs and other signs and evidences of hopeful love.

And she was truly and obviously without shame when Alec, in a perfectly gentlemanly way, showed her in no uncertain terms that her love was not returned. He stood there, quiet and disdainful and flattered while she whispered:

"Oh, you beautiful darling! Where did you come from? You're going to stay with me! Nobody is going to take you away from me!"

Alec didn't say anything. He just squirmed a little and looked at her while he pretended to ignore her. When she held him all the closer he pressed his chest against hers and then pulled suddenly away. Shameless, she stared at him.

"You're Scotch, aren't you?" she pronounced. Come with me and I'll find you something to eat. Zelda! Zelda, where are you?"

Zelda, Annette's maid, came into the room and looked at Annette and then at Alec. She was a large middle-aged woman with a red face and gray hair. She looked away from Alec and back at Annette.

"Now, Miss Annette," she protested, "we ain't going to have no dog in this house. I got enough to do to cook and take care of you. Besides, he belongs to somebody. Look how well-kept he is. Somebody'll be along to claim him so don't you go getting stuck on him."

"HE'S MINE!"

"But I am stuck on him," Annette confessed. "And he came to me out of the blue. I stepped out on the front porch a moment ago and there he was just inside the gate, standing looking at me. Isn't he a beautiful scottie? Look at that long black fur and the pointed nose and the wise little shoe-button eyes! I don't care who comes for him. They won't get him. I'll pay them anything they ask. Besides, nobody may come for him. If he belongs to somebody, why isn't he wearing his collar and license tag? No, he's mine. And his name is—"

let's see. Something very Scotch—Roderick Dhu. That's it, Black Roderick. Come here, Roderick."

But Roderick or Alec wasn't having any. He stood with his front feet apart looking at Annette with what must have been an expression of reproach. Then he looked at Zelda and did the worst possible thing he could have done, if he hoped to escape from that house. He trotted over to her and nudged her ankle.

"Go away," Zelda ordered and looked down at him with eyes in which was already appearing the light of desire. "Go away." But Alec nudged her ankle again and barked. Zelda thereupon squatted and started to pet him. "Maybe you're right, Miss Annette," she said thoughtfully, though even she, herself, knew she was lying. "He might be a stray mongrel, at that. We'll keep him for a few days, anyhow. Come on Roderick, I'll see if there's a bone in the kitchen."

"I'll go with you," Annette announced. And that is how Alec came to the Fyfe household.

Alec—alias Roderick Dhu—stayed at the Fyfe cottage for two days. Then, fed up with women and suffering slightly from indigestion caused by the intake of too much starchy food, he disappeared. Annette was nearly frantic. She advertised in all New Jersey and New York papers and, as a sort of afterthought, in the Stonington Weekly Review. She gave the ad over the telephone and it was taken by a man whose voice she did not like at sound.

"Who is this please?" she asked.

"This is Bill—I mean, Mr. Hard" the man answered. "I'm the editor. I happened to be the only person in the office at the moment. What was the name again?"

"Annette Fyfe," she told him. "You'll see that that ad is inserted immediately to run until further notice."

"I will," Bill—I mean Mr. Hard—answered. "Say, aren't you The Miss Fyfe of Broadway? I think one of our staff interviewed you when you came to Stonington." "I am," Annette told him, "and he did. But I'm not interested in that at the moment. I'm interested in my little Scottie. He disappeared yesterday. You'll insert the ad won't you?"

IN PERSON

"Sure," Mr. Hard assured her "only I lost a Scottie the first of the week and he came home yesterday. I know just how you feel, Miss Fyfe. How long have you had him?"

"Why—er— Did you say you lost a Scottie which returned to you yesterday?" A curtain of doom began to descend over Annette. She just knew that this horrible man

"Yes. Name's Alec. Did you raise your pup?"

"Mr.— Mr. Hard," Annette said, swallowing that way, "I'm before, it was hers now. And whoever had it would give it up to her. She had to have Roderick back.

When she walked into the office, the first thing she saw was Roderick. He was sitting straight up at the large feet of a tall, sandy man with a hard, brutal face, who sat at a desk going through copy with a large black pencil.

"Roderick!" Annette sighed and all the love in the world was in her voice.

Roderick—for it was no other than he—stood up defensively and wagged his tail—once. The big sandy man looked up and at Annette. Then he put his pencil down

"Sorry, but we men must stick together."

"Stay there, Alec!" Bill Hard ordered and took a few more steps. "Now, Miss Fyfe," he said, "you call him. If he goes to you, he's your dog. If he doesn't, he's mine. Is that fair?"

"COMF HERE!"

Annette nodded and drew herself up into a bundle of dynamic charm. All that she ever had learned about attracting men on the stage and off was visible in her slender body. And all the charm of a million women was in her voice as she said softly:

"Come here, Roderick. Please, Roderick. Come."

Alec—alias Roderick—sat down and regarded her gravely.

"Come here!" she commanded with all the force in her.

Alec stood up. There was an instant of tension so tight that she could feel it gathering about her throat. Then Alec walked away from her. He kept right on walking with an occasional glance back over his shoulder at her until he had passed the big, sandy man. Then he sat down at the side of his right heel.

Bill Hard started a slow smile of triumph. But it died in mid-lip because Annette Fyfe was crying. She was sitting on her heels, and her face had broken down, and tears were welling from her eyes. Bill started to walk to her. He hated to see a woman cry. But something told him not to. Instead, he stood there and looked down at Alec, and he said tentatively:

"Looks like Alec would stay here for a while, Miss Fyfe. But I'm sure he likes you well enough to visit you every once in a while. Tell you what we might do. We might share him, like these divorced couples share their children. I'll keep him for a while. Then I'll bring him out to your place—or you can come here and get him. How does that sound?"

"It sounds perfect!" Annette said, wiping her eyes and looking at the Hard person from a new angle. "I could call at your home for him some day and Mrs. Hard could let me have him."

"Not up to now she couldn't," Bill laughed. "There isn't any Mrs. Hard. You just drop around here. Alec is always with me—when he's with me. Or maybe I could bring him out in a day or two."

"That," Annette told him, "would be awfully nice of you."

Well, that is all that happened at the moment. But Bill Hard did bring Alec out to Annette's a few days later. It was a day of snow-fall and ice in the air. A week later, they went skiing together on the slopes above the deer preserve. After that, one thing led to another until they ended in the announcement of the marriage.

Those are all the reasons back of why Miss Annette Fyfe of Broadway and the stage married a hick newspaperman.

THE END.

"Come here, Roderick. Please, Roderick, come!"

and walked toward the railing and her.

"You're Miss Fyfe," he stated. "Sorry you felt you had to come down here, but glad to see you. Here's an advertising form blank. Just follow the directions."

"But I don't need to write the ad now," Annette told him with a great deal of assurance. "I've found my dog. That's him beside you."

"Alec?" he laughed. "Oh, no. I raised Alec myself. I got him when he was a puppy a year and a half ago. From Jed Mullins. Jed raises Scotties out on Highway Number Ten. Roderick, eh. That isn't a very good name for a dog, Miss Fyfe. Sort of neurotic. The original Roderick Dhu was a tough hombre. I understand, but some of the boys who've been wearing the name since have made it—shall we say—respectable?"

"I tell you that he's my dog and his name is Roderick," Annette snapped.

"Miss Fyfe," he told her patiently, "this is my dog. Come on in here and I'll show you."

He opened the little gate in the railing and she came through it, half glared. He turned to Alec and then walked away. Alec walked after him, with a single glance at Annette which seemed to say, coming down to your office to write that ad in person."

Stonington isn't a very big town. Stonington Review is printed in the old Chronicle building on Essex Ave., about 30 yards from Main St. Driving down from her cottage on the hillside, Annette was just one beautiful bundle of determination. No matter who owned that dog

NAB PAIR IN $100,000 GEM THEFT

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—A 25-a-week hotel maid and a waiter were jailed today on grand larceny charges, climax of an investigation of jewel thefts at the Hotel Plaza that totaled approximately $100,000.

The two gave their names as Margaret Long, 22, and Ralph Palmer, 48.

Police said the girl gave a fictitious address during a routine check of hotel employees and, on a four-hour shopping tour yesterday, spent more money than trading detectives believed she could afford.

She was followed home by officers who said Palmer came in immediately after they entered her room in 110th st.

The girl and Palmer were held without bail for a hearing Jan. 26, pending further investigation of the theft.

Palmer lived with Miss Long, but she denied he knew anything of the thefts. He told police he came here three years ago from Fall River, Mass., where, he admitted, he had been implicated in a theft from a hotel.

AUSTEN LAKE

The Doctor Comes Back; Eddie Renews and Reviews

SUAVELY BOYISH AND UNALTERED by the National accolade as "coach of the year," Dr. Eddie Anderson, young-looking but aptly-adult oral surgeon, came back to Boston as guest orator at B. U.'s sports banquet.

AUSTEN LAKE

Just 13 months ago he had divorced so stable a spouse as Holy Cross to marry a lipstick jade at Iowa City. Holy Cross men had been stunned! What, asked they, could Iowa offer that Holy Cross couldn't equal—why, by six years of adoption, Dr. Eddie was as permanent a fixture on the Hill as the college carillon.

Thirteen months ago Dr. Eddie had talked it over amiably with the reverend fathers, explaining that Iowa had buttered his salary toast so thickly, had awarded him a fellowship in its medical center and had been so liberal in other perquisites that it left no room for barter. The discussion was brief, friendly and final. The reverend leader had sadly shaken his head, wished him luck and the Dr. taxied down the Hill for the last time—past the iron fence and the gray, steel stands. If there was a lump in his larynx he swallowed it; $12,500 soothes a lot of sorrow.

So now he was back briefly, sitting in an uptown Boston hotel while his old fellowship of the press made pencil jottings of his every utterance. He mentioned my final, kindly-meant, year-old caution as he had sped through Ohio's corn stubble on his way to Iowa adventure. For I had written: "Dr. Eddie is a good coach and a cordial gent who never exploited a friendship or made capital of the sufferings of his kids. But mid-western athletic boards are noted for their impatience with failure. After a few losing seasons they fire the current coach and hire another instead of firing the team and recruiting another. Iowa assumes, because Dr. Eddie has been successful at Holy Cross, that he has the gift of miracles, the trick of wizardry. Yet nowadays there is no special coaching knack that one major college coach can claim above his fellows. So Andy is no sure bet to transform Iowa's mice-and-punkins into a coach-and-four. The age of glass slippers and fairy princes is over with that other Anderson, Hans by name."

He Performed His Magic

EDDIE GRINNED THROUGH THE CURL of his cigarette smoke. "He felt just that way about it," he confessed. But somehow the "miracle" occurred and the Dr., who is no courtesy physician but a man who can take out your adenoids or teach you to mouse trap a tackle with equal facility, had taken Iowa's stumblefoots and showed them how to beat Indiana, Minnesota, Notre Dame, Purdue, Wisconsin and the Northwestern. He was voted the Nation's outstanding coach. Iowa alumni gave him an automobile and a $1000 gold watch. The university wrote him a six-year contract at a hoist in pay. The papers offer him fat fees for his philosophies. The magazines print his life history. He presides at college dinners about the country.

Yet level headedly he said now, "Coaching isn't my ultimate aim—medicine is! Football is a precarious life, you're up on a pedestal today and pulled down tomorrow."

A year ago I had sat with him in his cubicle at the Boston Veterans' Bureau where files of aging ex-soldiers came for throat swabbing, X-ray pictures, and hospital commitments. The Dr. treated them with skilled courtesy as he said how, for years, he had yearned to dovetail private practice with his coaching work, but felt that a verbal, year-by-year agreement such as he had at Holy Cross, lacked security. He couldn't, on his precarious income, plant his roots permanently in Boston and say, "Jo guis, jo reste."

But now he said, "Beginning February I am entering the University hospital. Two years from now I hope to hang up my shingle as an Iowa practitioner." His cup of satisfaction was brimming. He had, in hand or in view, everything he wished.

About football he talked tactfully, denying the quotations which a Boston paper had printed last November that his 1939 Iowa team could beat Holy Cross by three touchdowns. "I said, 'We might take 'em, or we might not.'"

Had he missed Joe Sheeketsky, his old Holy Cross assistant who had been pledged to him at Iowa but reneged to take the head Holy Cross job? "Not after Carideo got started . . ." then, hastily, "I wouldn't say either was a better coach than the other. I'd have been glad to have Joe, just as I was satisfied with Frank."

They Build 'Em Bigger Out There

NILE KINNICK, THE IOWA SUPER-SENIOR who shares the Nation's No. 1 calcium with Anderson, was always on the tip of his tongue. Did the Dr. think Kinnick a better back than Bill Osmanski had been during his last year at Worcester? "Nile might get you more touchdowns," he said, "but Bill was a marvelous blocker who made it possible for the other backs to make their touchdowns."

Would he renew his old Holy Cross contacts while in Boston? No, time was brief. But he had received a peach basketful of letters from Holy Cross men after his season—letters of congratulation and well-wishing. Had he seen more outstanding players in the west than he used to see in the East? Yes—Christianson from Minnesota, Harrison and de Couevant of Northwestern, Paskevian of Wisconsin—they bred them bigger and seemingly more adult out there.

Hochum! he said, life was just a round of dinners, pumping hands, telling how it had happened. Today Boston, tomorrow New Haven, Sunday New York, then the wide open spaces of the middle West. It was a trying task, he thought, to be the "coach of the year."

FIVE N. E. BOXERS LEAVE FOR WEST COAST FINALS

By JACK CONWAY

Eastern members of the America-Record All-America boxing team today started the first part of their trip that will take them to San Francisco for the Grand National finals on Jan. 25. The five New England boxers on the Eastern team left the North Station in mid-afternoon bound for Chicago. John Leonard, 118 pounds; Billy Daley, 126 pounds; George Beckles, 135 pounds; Al Priest, 147 pounds; Paul Conley, 160 pounds, are the New England boys headed for the coast. All were given a warm send-off.

The three New York members of the Eastern team, Jones, 112 pounds; Cox, 175 pounds, and Wint, heavyweight, also started for Chicago today.

FREEMAN IN CHARGE

George Freeman, in charge of the training of the Eastern members of the All-America team, has made arrangements for his youthful charges to work out in the CYO Gym in Chicago tomorrow afternoon.

Tomorrow night at 10:25 p. m. the Eastern and Western All-America champions will leave Chicago for San Francisco where they will arrive on Tuesday morning. This will give the boxers two days in which to work out before being called upon to enter the ring.

The Eastern boxers have been training for two weeks, and they are already in good condition. Each is confident that when he returns home that he will have an All-America national title.

A SIGHTSEEING TOUR

Following the bouts in San Francisco, members of the Eastern and Western teams will go on a sightseeing tour of Los Angeles, Hollywood, Catalina Island, Boulder Dam and other points of interest.

Mrs. George Freeman accompanied her husband, George Freeman, on the trip to California.

Other members of the party were Mike Conroy and Mrs. Conroy of South Boston, Sam Cohen, sports editor of the Daily Record, and Mrs. Cohen, Mrs. Jack Conway and the writer.

It should be a grand trip, and the Eastern boxers will show Californians that they can box and punch with the best of the country's amateurs.

As the popular song says:

"California, here we come!"

"CALIFORNIA, HERE I

COME." That's the song on

George Beckles' lips today.

Bingham Sees Harvard Free Of Gate Worry

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP)—Bill Bingham, who directs athletics at Harvard, is looking ahead to the day when colleges will be able to conduct their sports programs without being dependent on gate receipts.

Bingham told the Touchdown Club of New York last night that he was entirely in accord with those who deplore the prominent positions which gate receipts, from football specifically, now occupy in the intercollegiate sports setup.

"It's a situation which we believe we have found the solution at Harvard through the creation of an athletic endowment fund," he said. "That fund now amounts to slightly less than $400,000. It isn't nearly enough."

"But the day will come when Harvard will finance its entire sports program through that fund, and gate receipts no longer will be essential."

Bingham also feels that proselyting and subsidization can be eliminated in less time than it will take Harvard to attain its athletic Utopia.

"The type of athletics a college has," said Bingham, "is dependent entirely on the wishes of its president. All a college president has to do is say what type of athletics he wants, and that's the type he'll get."

Olympics Off For Canada Tonight

By SAM BROGNA

With the exception of Bud Foster, first string center, every member of the league leading Olympics team, will board the 8:30 p. m. train out of North Station tonight for an important two-game weekend jaunt to Canada.

The Verdun Bulldogs and Valleyfield Braves are their opponents, the former to be met tomorrow night. Then, the trek to Valleyfield for a Sunday afternoon tilt with the Braves.

BRING TWO JUNIORS

The Boston team will be without the services of Foster for the first time this season, because of a leg injury the Dartmouth star received in the last game. His place will be taken by Frankie Sullivan of Melrose and Garnet Isola of Worcester. Both boys are known to local amateur fans, the former as ace center for the Junior Olympics, while Isola performs with the Boston Rangers.

In order to keep their junior ratings, Coach Hago Harrington will be able to use them in only one game each. Sullivan is expected to work the first game.

This trip, the third one this season, marks the last Canadian journey for the Boston entry during the official season. They invade the Dominion as leaders of the Quebec Senior Provincial League for the first time since entering the loop three years ago.

Up to this year, they haven't fared so well on out-of-town trips. They opened their season with a 6 to 4 win over Quebec in the Queen City's own back yard, and then dropped a 3 to 1 decision to the Shawinigan Cataracts the following day.

DOUBLE POINTS

On their second trip, over Thanksgiving Day, they picked up six points. Four of these were against St. Hyacinthe whom they licked after taking an 8 to 0 drubbing from Sherbrook the first night and the other points were made playing Lachine to a 3 to 3 dead lock. This gives them an even break on the road.

A double win for Coach Harrington's crew will give them a firmer hold on the top run, a spot they have enjoyed since they started their nine-game winning streak on their last trip to the Dominion.

An encouraging fact of this trip is that they receive four points for a win instead of the usual two. This is because they play fewer games than their rivals and in order to make up the deficit are awarded the four points.

CANADA BOUND. Three Olympics left wings who leave for Dominion tonight for week-end games with Verdun Bulldogs and Valleyfield Braves. Reading down: Cliff Thompson, Dick Lewis, Junie Allen.

School Sixes Battle On Arena

By MICHAEL GILLOOLY

Schoolboy hockey gets down to serious business tonight when the Bay State League opens the week-end activities on the Arena ice with the Greater Boston and Eastern Mass. circuits following with a double session tomorrow afternoon and evening.

There'll be an odd note struck in these sessions in the fact that all three loops will have co-leaders facing comparative pop-overs with slim chance of any being upset.

In the Bay State tonight, Needham will take on Walpole while Waltham applies the slug to Watertown. The other two games on the program will pit Framingham and Wellesley in the opener, and B. C. High and Quincy in the nighttime.

TOO GOOD FOR WALPOLE

Needham, trailing Waltham in the standings only on the number of goals scored, really felt the pressure last week when Wellesley held the team to a single point victory, but should not find Walpole as tough an opponent.

Don Lumsden, Larry Arra and Mal McLeod have boosted Needham to its high standing. This trio will be out to run up as high a score as possible tonight to try to overcome Waltham's margin.

In whipping Quincy 8-4 last week, Waltham had little trouble in climbing over Needham. Watertown will probably not be as soft for the Walpole City crew, especially with Bill Shannon tending goal, but holds little hope of stopping the Waltham assault.

Perley Gari, Hec Rousseau and Bob Connor appear much too strong for the Watertown defenses. All three are among the leading scorers in the loop and will probably advance as a unit in this race as well as keep the team at the top of the pack.

Saturday afternoon on the same surface co-leaders Newton and Melrose should not run into too much difficulty against Stoneham and Rindge Tech respectively. Filling out this program, Belmont meets Cambridge Latin, while Arlington, still very much in the running, shoots at Medford.

NEWTON HITS FAST PACE

Since losing its opening game, Newton has hit a high mark, last week setting a new high with its speedy scoring. Phil Fossenden, Tom Dugan and Walter Hurley will probably not have so easy an afternoon but should easily keep the Grange and Black at the top of the roost against the inexperienced Tech team.

Stoneham has only Johnny Russell to carry the offensive load so will probably fall before the power shots of George Noves, Russ Priestly and Charlie Holt. This trio has become one of the most feared in the Greater Boston circuit.

STANDINGS SHOULD REMAIN

Tomorrow night, Brookline will open the Eastern Mass. program against Somerville which recently won its first game of the campaign, while Dedham faces its earliest touch of the year in Brockton. The standings should find Brookline and Dedham again deadlocked for the leadership.

The other two games find Malden vs. Natick and Hudson vs. Lexington completing the last half of the program.

"I'm not Babe Ruth." Joe Goodhouse wears No. 31, just like Babe Ruth did but he doesn't like to be kidded about it. Joe's a member of Quincy High forward line. His team faces B. C. High at Arena.

McDonald Elected B. U. Grid Captain

With Jim McDonald, Boston University's captain elect for 1940 sharing honors with Dr. Eddie Anderson, Iowa's miracle grid coach, the sixth annual Boston University sports dinner at the Hayden Memorial Building hit a new all time with over 900 in attendance.

The fact that Dr. Anderson was the guest of the night was well known but speculation had been rife as to the new grid leader in view of the fact that the ballots cast over a month ago were not counted until just before the dinner.

COMES FROM REVERE

Jim McDonald, a Revere boy who has been a regular end since the first game of his sophomore year, received what was close to a unanimous vote.

Dr. Anderson spoke briefly on his amazing success at Iowa, and attributed it to a combination of events which included luck, and a squad that had the will to win. He went on to show the definite part football plays in a college educational program and his views met the hearty endorsement of Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, president of Boston University.

NEEDHAM WINS AWARD

Several athletes were picked out for special awards and the highlight came when it was announced that Prof. Raymond C. Baldes, head of the faculty committee on athletics, presented Raymond Needham, senior varsity center, with a $50 scholarship in tribute to his spirit and outside work which kept him from participating in other sports.

Awards were given to Capt. Paul Sullivan, Joe Giannotti, Capt. Eleet Jim McDonald, Charley Cremens, Jacob Salibi, Jim Conlon, Sam Wilson, John Lukichook.

Prexy Can't Get Extra Eli Ticket

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 19 (AP)—When the president of Yale can't get an "extra" ticket for a Yale athletic event that's something! In fact, that's exactly the havoc created by Yale's swimming meet between Yale and Michigan. As far as the two schools are concerned the event will determine the national champion and the campus is as much cleaned up as if it were a big football game.

The 200 seats of Yale's natatorium were snatched up by faculty and students weeks ago. Other persons were left clamoring fruitfully for tickets.

So that's why the request of President Charles Seymour for tickets for another duck occasioned weeks of scurrying around, but not a single additional seat.

Sports Interlude

By BILL GRIMES

Unless Connie Smythe changes his mind and comes here with his Toronto club next Tuesday, the pre-game publicity will slump . . . Smythe is a pop-off but he is not as screwy as they have him billed. . . In the old days when St. Pat's represented Toronto in the N. H. L., the directors of that club didn't cut many coupons. . . But, since Smythe has been at the head of the Maple Leafs, hockey has been a big money maker in Toronto.

Capt. "Dit" Clapper would have broken that stick that nicked him in the Canadiens game at Montreal if he had had two good legs. . . He entered the game with a bad "Charlie Horse," which he was obliged to favor. . . He was very fortunate that the injury was not more serious.

Due to the presence of Eddie Shore in the line up, the Springfield Indians-Ithaca Red Sox game will draw a capacity home tomorrow night. . . If the weather man becomes reasonable, there will be a number of Boston hockey fans at the game. . . Eddie will make a serious mistake if he doesn't wear a helmet in all International-American League games. . . The I-A-L is the wood choppers paradise. . . They really now ya' down.

Benny McCoy will probably wind up with the Giants. . . Bill Terry needs a second baseball. . . He hasn't any youngster coming up who compares with McCoy. . . And, young Horace Stoncham has the where-withal to meet McCoy's demands. . . Young Stoncham has probably heard of the mistake that late John J. McGraw made when he failed to snap up Rick Ferrell's offer to catch for the Giants, if "Mac" would give him a bonus of $25,000 for signing.

Since he graduated from Dartmouth and entered baseball, Bob "Red" Rolfe has made good money. . . And, he has been thrifty enough to keep the bulk of it within arm's reach. . . So, he is now in a position to battle Pres. Ed Burrows of the Yankees for an $18,000 contract. . . Rolfe is one of the greatest of all time third basemen and if the truth were known, the Yanks need him at the hot corner more than he needs the money. . . One of the reasons star ball players do not get more money is that they get hungry, because of lack of funds along about February or March, and their stomachs will not allow them to hold out. There are no night clubs or night life in Penacook, N. H. . . So, Red Rolfe is sitting pretty. Bobby Knowles, The Country lute, is putting in a long stay. He's golfing in Florida and, judging from reports, doing all right. I've always claimed Jack on say, knew his onions. . . Accompanied by Mrs. Conway, Jack left for California today. . . This is an ideal time to slip out of New England for the West Coast or the Sunshine State. The Golden Glove winners in this section will find Jack Conway a great host.

Jumpin' Joe Dugan is available as a scout, coach or minor league manager. . . Jumpin' Joe did his bit toward popularizing the national game and now is really in need of a job. . . Few old time ball players are better qualified than the former Yankee and Red Sox third sacker.

If you don't believe the stories about proselytizing among the Southern colleges, you should see the offer that a Dorchester High School boy received from L. S. U. after the Baton Rouge authorities had been advised that this boy was favored for the University of Florida.

The St. Louis hockey fans are deserting the Flyers because they (the Flyers) are winning too many games. . . If the New York Americans are shifted to the Mound City, the fans will be AWOL, but for a different reason. . . The Amer's will lose too many. The N. H. L. is headed into a choppy sea and may be obliged to send out a SOS to get ashore. . . As we've said time and time again, the National Hockey League began to skid soon after C. F. Adams disposed of his Bruin stock. . . "C. F." better get back in harness and straighten out the pro hockey situation before it's too late.

The Ice Follies of 1940 and Sonja Henie will come very close to "growing" as much as the Bruins will this season. . .

Jack Quinn's family is not interested in seeing Quinn's Truicis. . . They can get better entertainment listening to Papa Jack tell about the numerous trips he's taken this winter. . . Tony Cucinello and his family are at Bradenton and "Chick" should be in great shape by the time the Bees hit camp. . . Billy Sullivan, who labors for the St. Louis Browns, is in the real estate business in Sarasota, Fla. . . He builds and sells bungalows of the Spanish type and is doing very well. . .

135'S SHOULD 'STEAL' ARENA STATE FINALS

The big "putsch" of amateur padded glove wearers will advance on the Arena Monday night when 32 sturdy young men from all sections of the Commonwealth will clash in the grand finals of the Massachusetts State Championships.

Every one of these 32 contenders for State titles has but one thought in mind—to win the crown on Monday night and thereby automatically qualify for the New England championships at the Boston Garden on March 11.

A TICKET TO NATIONALS

As only the New England champions will represent the New England A. A. U. in the National Boxing Championships at the Boston Garden on April 8, 9 and 10, a win on Monday night in the State title bouts means everything to these lads.

Every class on the card is studied with stars, but the lightweights will come in for a lot of attention. The four 135 pounders are the "tops."

FREDA IN COMEBACK

Listed as Win Heeler, 20-year-old Boston boy who has been a consistent winner in all shows this season; Orlando Croft, 24-year-old East Boston WPA worker with a record of 16 victories in the last two years; John Daley, 18-year-old Newton student, one of the most likely looking youngsters to come up in the amateur ranks for years and Al Freda of Milford, who has been out of action for nearly a year but who is making a grand comeback in this State tournament. Freda is a classy performer and will make the youngsters step to keep the title from going back to Milford Monday night.

Ambers Bout For Winner

At Weill manager of Lou Ambers, world's lightweight champion agreed to sign articles for an overnight match with the winner of tonight's bout between Pat Foley, Worcester, and Joey Greb, Haverhill, N. Y., at Mechanics Hall, Worcester.

Matchmaker Johnny Lee made his announcement last night after talking with Weill.

The commission doctors declared the rivals were in excellent condition. Pre-fight speculation had Greb installed a slim 6 to 5 choice to whip the Worcester firecracker. The only smurph on Greb's brilliant career was a defeat administered by Ambers.

GOOD SKIING now prevails in the majority of Northern centers, most places reporting a sufficient snow depth with breakable crust. If a light snow should powder the surface as is forecast, excellent conditions would result all over New Hampshire! At any rate, skiers may look forward with optimism to the coming week-end...

Providing there is snow this Sunday, he is taking a group of forty girl ski enthusiasts to the Groton Country Club slopes, where he has been giving expert instruction every week. The girls have been practicing under his guidance at the indoor slide of the Wells Institute on Washington st.

OLYMPIC SKI STARS will be seen in action Sunday morning on the new north slope of Cranmore mountain at North Conway, N. H., where competition in the Eastern Slope Ski Club's giant slalom for teams of men and women will begin at 10 o'clock.

Since Betty Woolsey, Harriet Jackson, Marian McKean, and Grace Lindley Carter of the American women's team; and Kettil de Cosson, captain of the English women's team for 1938, have signed up for the advanced slalom classes starting on Monday, it is expected that these feminine exponents of the winged boards will add a touch of class to the big race.

Hannes Schneider will lay out the testing course on Cranmore mountain Saturday, and will make the first run through the flags on Sunday, covering a distance that will be almost a mile! The slope drops 1240 feet in that space!

BARREL JOCKEY. He rides those barrels, does Harris Legg, world's champion skating broad jumper. Legg, who will try to eclipse his own world record of 23.8 at the Garden on weekend, tells Silver Skates entrants today to "get inside and practice turns."

14,981 Attend 'Ice Follies'

The comedy act in which Les Hamilton, one time speed skater, portrays "Miss Snowflake," stole the show of the "Ice Follies of 1940" before another capacity gathering at the Garden.

The total paid attendance for the third night's showing was 14,981, one more than the night previous. Also to draw a large share of applause was the now famous "Swing Waltz" which received five encores for the third night running.

Skaters Must Learn To Make Sharp Turns

By OLYMPIAN

Harris Legg, trick skating sensation of the Ice Follies of 1940, which is packing 'em in at the Boston Garden as never before, who won Canadian speed skating championships galore before turning professional, tips all entrants in the great Silver Skates Derby that it is time for them to desert outdoor skating and get indoors and practice the turns.

"Indoor skating is altogether different than outdoor," warns Legg, "and contestants who cannot take the turns properly will be lost. With only a little more than two weeks before the Silver Skates Derby, all entrants should get indoors and practice the turns. An altogether different stroke is required than in outdoor skating on bigger tracks. It takes much practice to hug the inside border. Inability to do so costs much valuable yardage."

With the co-operation of the Garden-Arena management, the Boston American-Record-Advertiser has arranged for reduced rates to the special practice session at the Boston Arena, next Tuesday night.

REDUCED RATES

In the Boston Sunday Advertiser and in the Boston American and the Record on Monday and Tuesday special coupons will be printed, which with 25 cents will admit the bearer to the practice session in the Boston Arena next Tuesday evening.

Following the regular practice session, special practice skating races for Silver Skates entrants will be held under the direction of Ben Levis and a capable corps of officials.

Watch for the coupons on next Sunday's Advertiser and in the Boston Evening American and Record on Monday and Tuesday.

In yesterday's Boston Evening American Oscar Johnson, co-producer of the Ice Follies, who in his younger days was junior North-west speed skating champion, stressed the importance of taking turns rightly and whetting up speed on the turns by daily practice on indoor rinks.

Harris Legg, who last Friday in Philadelphia made a new world's professional long jump on skates record of 23 feet 8 1/4 inches, repeats Johnson's advice today and gives a most valuable tip.

"If contestants only will learn to lower and drop back their left shoulder a little," says the famous Canadian, "they will find they can hug the inside border better and save the many valuable yards lost by contestants who swing wide on the turns."

"Get up on the points of your skates at the start and after the first rush for the turn drop and pull back your left shoulder and you will see how much more easily you hug the pole and negotiate the turns. Taking the turns rightly costs just as much as speed and endurance in indoor races."

Remember this, skaters, when you practice in the Boston Arena next Tuesday night and in all your other training sessions. It's only a fortnight before the great Silver Skates Derby under the combined auspices of the Boston American-Record-Advertiser and you'll have to take the turns rightly if you hope to capture the Silver Skates and other of the beautiful trophies.

There are races for everyone from six to sixty. Get in your entry before the entries close on Friday, Feb. 26th.

Starting Gate 6 Xoe Hinders Don Meade

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—Tattle tales: A New York sculptress is making a bust of Joe Louis and will enter it in a national contest. . . Barney Ross is so homesick for Chicago he'll move back to the Loop as soon as he can settle his business affairs here.

Trouble getting out of Hialeah's new electric starting gate is the reason behind the Don Meade slump. . . The Professional Football Players' Ass'n will name its most valuable cash-and-carry player tomorrow and you can get ready to sing "Dixie."

OBSERVATION WARD
 Harold W. Pierce, new president of the U. S. G. A., will give up a $1000 post from the Massachusetts racing commission to devote more time to the golf job—which pays nothing.

Around here they're yelling for a hockey czar. . . the new athletic setup on the coast will be patterned after the Big Ten. . . Jim Carroll, St. Louis betting commissioner, will send Bimblech to look at 3 to 1 in his Kentucky derby book. . . Samuel Riddle, has a yearling sister to War Admiral in his barn and will name her Admiralite. . .

TODAY'S GUEST STAR
 Jim Rasmussen, Ironwood, Mich.: Charlie Walker, the woodsman, says no man ever got lost in the woods if he carried a deck of cards along. . . Just let him start playing solitaire, and some darn fool will come along and tell him what card to play, says Charlie.
 Personal—See Taylor, Des Moines sports editor, has been elected a director of the corporation which controls the Minneapolis Star-Journal. . . Tony Galento and his Buckaroos, a merry minstrel show, with El Galento as star, goes on at Orange, N. J., tonight.
 Ford C. Frick will get a special invitation to do his stuff in the Northwest curling championships (largest in the country) at Superior, Wis. . . Henry Armstrong goes on tour soon for personal appearances with his movie, "Keep Punching."

Gone With the Wind
 The judge has gone away from here
 To take the sun down at Bolivar,
 And it may be that while he's there
 Some more farm hands may get
 Of this there is no room for doubt—
 Teacher's gone, but school ain't out.

FINISH FOR FINNS
 Out on Wednesday's hectic session of our august boxing commission came one same observation: The Finns had better not wait for Baer and Galento to relieve 'em.

Bartolo Gets Salamone Bout

By RINGSIDE
 Salvator Bartolo, 126, East Boston, battled his way to a shot at George Salamone, when he thumped out a unanimous win over Bob "Poison" Ivy, 127½, Hartford, Ct., in the 10-round main event of a double wind-up, before 3100 fans at Mechanics Building, last night. Ivy, employing a disconcerting left hook to the body, gave Salvy trouble throughout the battle, but the East Bostoner was a bit too fast for "Poison" at long range, and scored repeatedly with sharp right crosses. Lawrence turned out to watch Andy Callahan, 138½, turn on a torrid finish that had the customers standing in their seats as he overcame a big lead Young Byron, 141½, Roxbury, enjoyed to gather a unanimous decision.
 Leo Dumaive, Worcester, kayced John Sorenson, Providence, four rounds, 11½; Jackie Caparelli, Roxbury, decisioned Tony Gouveia, Brockton, six rounds; and Eddie Holmes, Roxbury, topped Sam Tenore, Quincy, in the four round opener in the preliminary bouts.

Bryant Demands Better Terms

ZANESVILLE, O., Jan. 19 (AP)—Clay Bryant said today he had returned his unsigned 1940 contract to the Chicago Cubs.
 "The contract called for a cut bigger than the raise I received in 1939," Bryant said at his winter home north of here.
 Still tanned from a recent 17-day stay at Hot Springs where he worked out kinks in the pitching arm that troubled him last season, Bryant said he might visit owner P. K. Wrigley at Chicago to discuss terms.

East Boston Leads In Tri Track Meet

East Boston has school's huge edge in the Class D event sent the North Enders into the lead in the triangular meet against Brighton and South Boston at the 101st Infantry Army.
 Totals handed East Boston 85 points against 78 for Brighton and 70 for South Boston. The field event to wind up the affair this afternoon.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

IT LOOKED LIKE old times in the boxing game with Dave Lumianski of New Bedford in a huddle with Matchmaker Rip Valenti of the Goodwin A. C. Lumianski formerly managed Chick Suggs of Newport who was as great a fighting machine in his day as Hammering Henry Armstrong.

When Suggs and Dick Finnegan fought for the featherweight championship of the world in the Arena, a crowd of 15,000 paid $36,000 to see the battle. Finnegan won the decision after an uphill contest.

Lumianski is trying to secure world's title recognition for Babe Verila of New Bedford who recently won the New England middleweight crown from Young Britt of Fall River.

"Verila is a rugged, two-fisted fighter, and I believe he is going places in the ring," Lumianski told me. "I cannot see anybody in the middleweight division that will stop Verila's advance."

Valenti mentioned the name of Henry Chmielewski, Harry Kelley's middleweight who has won 15 bouts during the past year and a half.

"Chmielewski is the best puncher in the middleweight division," said Valenti. "The fellow knocks over buildings with his right hand, while he has also a healthy kick in his left duke."

Lumianski kept right on talking about Verila. That is a way these old-time managers have when they are ballyhoosing a member of their fistful stable. They are not going to permit any other boxer to steal any of the limelight if they can prevent it.

It was quite apparent that Valenti would like to arrange a bout between Verila and Chmielewski for the New England middleweight championship.

"It would be a swell fight," said Rip, "and Chmielewski and Verila would each be in there trying for a knockout."

Lumianski admitted it would be a good scrap, but was talking about a big guarantee, a percentage privilege and such things at latest reports.

THE GALLANT little band of Eastern All-America ring champions who start for San Francisco today are sure to do well in their battles against the leading boxers of the West, South and Coast.

The New England boys on the team—Leonard, Daley, Beckles, Priest and Conley—came through the Eastern finals with flying colors, and will give a creditable account of themselves in the grand national finals at San Francisco on January 25.

The New York members of the Eastern team—Jones, Cox and Wintwill join the Boston party early this evening at Albany. Tomorrow afternoon in the CVO Gym in Chicago members of the Eastern team will go through a two-hour training session. Tomorrow night the Eastern team, in the company of the Western team, will be California bound.

It will be a grand trip across the continent for these young boxers. In San Francisco they will be warmly greeted and given the freedom of the city.

"I saw your All-America Eastern finals," Gene Tunney told me when in Boston the other night to speak at the father and son's night of the Brotherhood. "The boys in the tournament were a fine looking group, and I know that the winners will conduct themselves with credit at San Francisco."

"I believe these boys have the most necessary quality for a boxer, which is courage. With courage and intelligence a boxer can accomplish almost anything."

"When you see the thousands of fine looking, young American boxers, possessing courage, intelligence and sportsmanship, you realize there is not any necessity for anybody to worry about the future of the United States. These boys when they become men will uphold the most noble traditions of our country."

for, as each contestant starts through the gates, onlookers will be able to watch the seconds tick off while a flying figure twists and turns in and out of hairpin curves flushes, and stem glides.

Novel and attractive wooden ski boots, carved in the region, are to be the prizes given to the first, second, and third finishers in each division, and to the winning team in each class.

SKI SCOOP: Good news for all skiers is found in the announcement just received from Woodstock, Vermont, to the effect that the OSCAR CYR SKI SCHOOL will open there today! Classes will be conducted on Bunny Bertram's slopes with advanced Slalom Classes on the famous Suicide Six.

Anyone who attended the Boston or New York winter sports shows last year will recall Cyr's grand performances as he placed high in the slalom races against the best racers from Europe.

The Oscar Cyr Ski School will operate daily at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m., with the added feature of a special Sunday morning class in advanced Slalom Instructions on Suicide Six. Skiers for this session should make reservations beforehand since this group will be limited to six pupils. Classes for youngsters under 12 will be called the Children's Hour and will also be held on Sunday mornings.

Oscar is one of the best ski teachers from whom we have ever taken lessons, and we wish him all sorts of luck in his new endeavor. And, of course, "Jiki Hell!"

SKI CLUB CHATTER: Comes a bulletin from that up-and-coming organization known as the "WILLIAMS CATS," a Boston club affiliated with the U. S. E. A. S. A. for the purpose of racing. At a recent meeting, Roger Corey of Belmont was elected captain of the race team. Carl Helmar, leader of the Lynn Snow Chasers, was named acting captain, and Chris Johnson, vice president of the Amateur Ski Club of Woburn, is to be manager of the race group.

Miss Vivien B. Sharnan, 353 Harvard st., Cambridge, secretary of the race team is anxious to hear from other New England groups to arrange inter-club slalom meets.

As mentioned in this column some time ago, Fred Nosworthy of the Plymouth Swiss Ski School will coach the club's racers.

Incidentally, Bjorne Johansen, a real ski expert, is treasurer of this outfit.

THE ASQUAMCHUMAUKEE SKI CLUB is the tongue-twisting name of the newly-organized club of Warren, N. H., taken from the old Indian name for the Baker river. (We wouldn't want to announce this club on the radio!) ... Warren also has a new ski tow more than 500 feet long. It is being financed by the cooperative effort of all the fellows and girls in town, who have chipped in to cover the cost of the rope, and a local resident who is furnishing the power plant and poles ... More power to 'em!

SKI SHOTS: Starting this evening, Larry Kantars, assistant buyer at Filene's, will give a series of lectures on basic and intermediate ski technique for employes only. Larry has attended the Eastern Slopes Ski School for the past three seasons, and is an expert advocate of controlled skiing.

Gala plans have been made by the town of Lisbon in the Franconia North area for their annual carnival and ball on Jan. 25, 26, 27. ... Twenty schools in Northern New Hampshire and Vermont have been invited to compete in the North Country Intercollegiate Meet which will include cross-country, downhill, slalom, snow shoe races, and ice skating dashes.

After double elopement, which caused quite a furore, Mrs. Edward Muhs, 15, and Mrs. Jeanette Stoms, 14, take a twirl at the culinary art in their Salem, N. J., apartment where they have set up housekeeping with their youthful husbands.

All Well

Mr. Justice, Now!—The oath administered by Justice Stanley Reed (right), Frank Murphy, former Attorney General, is sworn in as a justice of the United States Supreme court as President Roosevelt looks on. His appointment to the high court was the fifth the President has made.
